Lindbergh Lands in Texas on Way to New York from Mexico; Rumors Blasted

Secrecy Surrounds Arrival of Lone Eagle at Kelly Field; Alarm Reports Started When Army Observer Sights Plane in Trouble

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 26—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whose fate during the past 48 hours has been the subject of world-wide speculation, was in San Antonio today, enroute from Mexico to New York.

Great secrecy surrounded the landing of the Lone Eagle last night at Kelly field, near here.

Officials at the field would not admit that he had "checked in." It was understood Lindy had asked them to keep his presence secret so that his departure for the east today would not be delayed.

J. G. Crosby switchboard operator at Kelly field, admitted Lindbergh was to hop off today for New York.

Lindbergh hopped off from Tampico, Mexico, yesterday, apparently unaware that he was reported "lost" in a plane crash near Brownsville, Tex., the rumors spread over the country as fast as telegraph wires and radio could carry them.

Later, just when searching parties were being organized to scour the border near Brownsville, dispatches from Tampico stated the famous Lone Eagle was safe and that he had hopped off for an "announced destination."

The alarm rumors started, according to information received here, when an observer at Fort Brown, U. S. Army post near Brownsville, reported sighting an airplane in trouble near there. The plane dipped and shot downward until it was lost to view.

PLANE WRECKED

Army Officials Attempt To Identify Wreckage, Pilot Missing

Brownsville, Tex., Nov. 26—Efforts to identify the wreckage of an airplane without an occupant, reported found near Matamoros across the Mexican border from Brownsville, were being made today, according to dispatches from military authorities in Matamoros.

It is believed that it was this plane which was mistaken for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's late Saturday night when a military outpost reported sighting a plane coming down apparently out of control.

A cavalry patrol located the wreckage, according to reports, but found nothing to identify it, nor any trace of the pilot.

BANDIT ROUTED BY BOY, 16, AT GAS STATION

Harry Partridge Gets Best of Encounter with Holdup Man

KICKS GUN FROM HAND

Saves Cash as Would-Be Robber Flees Following Battle

Sixteen-year-old Harry Partridge, 250 Marion av., was a little too handy with his fists for a holdup man who attempted to rob the Shell filling station, at 805 Bellefontaine av., at approximately 10 o'clock Saturday night while young Partridge was in charge. Although Harry has a very sore head today to remind him of his encounter, he routed the bandit, who left without the money he came for.

As Partridge was closing up the filling station, which is owned by his grandfather, L. B. Partridge, 250 Marion av., Saturday night, a man came up to the little house at the station and tried the door knob. Finding it locked, he held up a glass jug so that Partridge could see it through the glass upper-half of the door. Supposing that the man wanted gasoline or oil, the boy opened the door and allowed him to enter.

Flashes Gun

As he came into the house, the man poked a gun into Partridge's stomach and said: "do as I tell you and don't say anything."

Partridge, however, kicked the gun out of the holdup-man's hand and it fell to the floor. The bandit then struck Harry over the head with a blackjack before the youth clashed with him.

In the fight which followed, the holdup-man was being worsted and realizing this he broke away and fled, picking up the gun from the floor as he ran.

Partridge started after his assailant, picking up the glass jug as he left the house. Realizing that he would soon lose the holdup-man in the darkness, Partridge threw the jug at him, but it struck a tree. The bandit escaped.

$80 Saved

In a money bag in the filling station was approximately $80 at the time the robbery occurred. L. B. Partridge had left for home only a short time before, taking close to $100 with him.

The holdup-man was approximately five feet seven inches tall and 135 pounds in weight, young Partridge reports. He was about 25 years old and wore a blue overcoat buttoned tightly about his throat. He was light in complexion. As he fled, he left a cap which had been knocked off in the fight, laying on the floor of the filling station.

MERCURY HITS LOW POINT FOR SEASON

Registers 18 Here During Night; Rise Forecast for Tonight and Tuesday

Low temperature records for the season were broken here last night when the mercury dropped to 18 degrees. Weather remained cold today, the mercury having risen to only 27 degrees at noon. This temperature is unusually low for mid-day.

A break in the cold weather is promised for Tuesday in weather forecast of "fair with rising temperature tonight and tomorrow," however.

Yesterday local thermometers reached a high of 48 degrees. About a half-inch of snow fell during the day, forming an icy crust on Marion sidewalks and streets. Automobile driving was hazardous and although a number of machines were reported in the ditch along Marion county highways, no serious accidents were listed.

Temperatures a year ago were somewhat higher. Records show a 61-degree high and 38-degree low on Nov. 25, 1927.

FATE OF KOON NOW IN HANDS OF 3 JUDGES

Appeal for Foos Slayer Argued Before District Tribunal

ERRORS ALLEGED

Robbery Not Premeditated, Attorney for Condemned Man Asserts

The fate of Everett Koon, alias Cecil Dean, is in the hands of three judges of the district court of appeals who this morning heard the argument of Koons' attorney on the appeal from the verdict of the common pleas court.

Koon has been found guilty by a jury of 12 men in common pleas court of killing Henry Foos, aged Marion county farmer, while in the act of committing a robbery. The case has been carried to the court of appeals on error, claimed by Koon's attorney to exist in the record of the court proceedings here.

Presents Argument

Homer D. Johnson, attorney for Koon, who waged an unsuccessful battle to save his client from the electric chair in common pleas court here last June, this morning fought the battle over again before the three judges sitting in the court-room here. His argument was completed shortly after 12 o'clock. The state's argument was to be made this afternoon by Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann and Police Prosecutor Carter Patton.

Johnson based his argument before the court on his claim that there was no evidence introduced before the jury in the lower court to show that the accused had any intention of robbing Mr. Foos when the fatal blow was struck in the struggle between the two.

Jury's Verdict

Koon was found guilty of murder in the first degree while committing a robbery. This was the second count in the indictment returned

WOMEN WILLINGLY RETURN TO CELLS

Wintry Blasts Defeat Escape Plans; Captured in Silo on Farm

Marysville, Nov. 26—Delphy Smith, 25, of Canton, and Mabel Fields, 27, of Cincinnati, both negro women, who escaped from the women's reformatory here yesterday crept gladly back into their warm cells today, bearing shivering testimony to the cold wave which swept the state yesterday.

They were discovered, in a half frozen condition early today, on the farm of Leo Rausch, seven miles south of here, where they had sought shelter from the wintry blasts in a silo. Their garments had been reduced to tatters by climbing barbed wire fences in their brief period of freedom.

NEGRO STOWAWAY TO BE CARRIED TO SOUTH POLE

London, Nov. 26—A young orphan negro, who stowed away on Commander Richard E. Byrd's supply ship City of New York, will be allowed to accompany the Byrd aviatic expedition to the South Pole, said a Central News dispach from Auckland today. The City of New York reached Auckland carrying the main body of the expedition. Several stowaways were found aboard but all save the young negro were landed at the first port.

POOR START IS MADE IN DRIVE FOR RED CROSS

Only Partial Canvass of City Completed by Workers Sunday

WILL BE CONTINUED

Hope To Reach Quota in Final Campaign Next Few Days

As a result of failure of local fraternal organizations to fully cover districts assigned to them in the campaign of the Red Cross for new memberships here, the twelfth annual roll call of the American Red Cross got off to a poor start yesterday, Miss Margaret L. Dowd, secretary of the Marion county chapter, stated today.

Members of the local Kings' Daughters, however, co-operated with local Red Cross officials excellently, Miss Dowd said.

Result Not Tabulated

No report of the success of the workers who made a house-to-house canvass yesterday is yet available as work of tabulating memberships and contributions obtained has not yet been started, according to Miss Dowd.

Many districts in the city were left entirely uncanvassed yesterday, Miss Dowd said, when workers failed to report for duty. An effort will be made to have these districts covered within the next few days, she said.

Those who wish to obtain memberships in the Red Cross or who wish to make contributions and have not yet been seen by a worker may do so by filling out the blank contained in an advertisement published elsewhere in this issue of The Star and sending it with the money to the offices of the Marion County Red Cross chapter in the Eagles' Temple.

Industrial Canvass

Plans were being made by Red Cross officials today for a drive in the industrial plants of the city. Permission will be obtained from the officials manufacturing companies for employes in their plants to canvass the workers for memberships and contributions.

The goal of the annual roll call is 2,500.

BAPTISTS HOLDING DISTRICT MEETING

One-Day Missionary Conference in Session at Marion Church

With approximately 75 in attendance, the one-day missionary conference of the Marion Baptist association opened this morning at the Memorial Baptist church. Delegates were present from all sections of the association.

The missionary speakers this morning were the Rev. J. T. Latta, missionary to Burma, and Dr. M. D. Eubank, a former missionary to China.

At the session this afternoon talks were to be given by Dr. Eubank, Mrs. Edward H. Kinney, secretary of the Christian Americanization department of the W. C. T. U. S., and the Rev. Ernest R. Fitch, and the Rev. R. Donald Williamson of the board of missionary co-operation.

After a young people's meeting at 6 o'clock the night session will open at 7:30 with motion pictures, "The Northern Baptist Thrust Abroad." A demonstration, "Facts in Action" will be given by the young people at 8 o'clock and a talk, "The World Thrust—Tomorrow" will be given by Dr. Eubank, in closing, at 8:30.

This conference, mid-year meeting of the association, is one of a number of similar missionary conventions being held by Baptists throughout the state. Such conferences are termed the "Baptist World Thrust Institute."

WOMAN INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT DIES

Mrs. John A. Wooley Succumbs at Home on North Prospect st.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the C. E. Curtis & Co. funeral chapel for Mrs. Louisa Angeline Wooley, 61, wife of John A. Wooley, who died Saturday night of internal injuries sustained in an automobile collision on the Marysville rd., 11 miles southwest of here, Sunday, Nov. 11. Burial was in Price cemetery, south of La Rue.

Mrs. Wooley died at 6:15 p. m. Saturday at her home, 498 North Prospect st., where she had been taken from City hospital late Saturday morning.

Others Injured

Others injured in the crash were Robert Fletcher, 461 West Church st., who remains in serious condition at the hospital, and his wife, Mrs. Fletcher and Mr. Wooley, who have recovered.

Occupants of the car with which the Wooley machine collided escaped without serious injury. They were Miss Lizzie Foster and W. C. Foster, 467 Windsor st., Donald Morey, Carner av., who was driving, and Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Styer, 393 Pearl st.

Coolidge Anxious for American Participation in World Court

Washington, Nov. 26—Taking a cue from the White House, the state department expects to renew shortly the negotiations with the powers looking toward possible American entrance into the World court, it was announced today.

President Coolidge told a number of senators at a breakfast conference Saturday he was anxious to secure American participation in the court.

The chief stumbling block has been the senate reservation which declares the court can not give an advisory opinion, without America's consent, on any dispute in which the United States has or claims an interest. Thus far the biggest nations, notably France and Britain, have objected to American adhesion to the court on the basis of this reservation.

20-30 SHIPS IN DISTRESS, MANY SINKING

Worst Gale in Years Sweeps Western Europe and Northern Africa

DEAD MAY REACH 50

Sixteen Lost When French Boat Founders; 1,000 Persons Homeless

By International News Service

Between 20 and 30 ships, ranging from liners to fishing boats, were reported sunk, sinking or in distress today in the worst gale that has swept western Europe and northern Africa in many years.

The dead may reach 50 when detailed reports are received.

From 1,000 to 1,500 are homeless in the communities devastated by the storm, more than 1,000 of them in Great Britain.

There were three separate gales in various parts of the world. In addition to that which swept Europe, another struck the coast of South Africa and a third—a typhoon—ravaged parts of the Philippine Archipelago.

Sixteen members of the crew of the French steamship Cesaire were drowned when the ship foundered off northern Africa.

Fate of Crew in Doubt

The fate of the 30 members of the crew of the French steamer Admiral Ponteo is in doubt. This ship crashed into a British vessel in the storm off Lisbon.

The Swedish steamship Gorm was reported sinking off the Dutch coast.

The Italian ship Corbeo was lost in the Gulf of Gascony, an arm of the Bay of Biscay, but her crew of 18 men were saved.

Eighty-four persons, including a number of German sailors, were rescued from the disabled German naval training ship Pommern, off Guernsey. The Pommern was abandoned, a derelict.

The British ship Carlton sank off South Africa. It is understood her captain lost his life by refusing to abandon his vessel.

German Steamer Helpless

The German steamer Heinrich Podeus is helpless and stranded off the German coast with two officers on board.

A Dutch coasting ship sank off Zuyder Zee.

The European harbors are filled with disabled ships of all sizes. England, Italy, Portugal, and Northern Africa suffered from the storm. There were cloudbursts in Scotland and Switzerland. The property damage will reach $15,000,000.

Transatlantic liners, both inbound and outbound, were delayed by the gales.

English channel maritime and airplane traffic schedules were upset.

Sea ports were battered by billows nearly as high as tidal waves. Wharves, piers and warehouses were damaged or washed away.

Homeric Is Safe

Two score of small ships off Deal, Eng., reported they were riding through the storm on short food rations. They feared to try to make port.

The White Star liner Homeric was delayed by the storm, but reported by wireless she was safe.

Many districts of Britain and continental Europe were isolated by destruction of telephone and telegraphic communications.

The French seagoing tug Iroise, which was reported missing after putting out from Brest to aid the stricken French steamship Admiral Ponty, reported by wireless late in the afternoon she had reached the vessel and was pumping out the hold.

JOHN L. SHIELDS DIES AT AGE OF 81

Former Marion Resident Passes Away at Home in Sharon, Pa.

John L. Shields, 81, a former resident of 191 efferson st., died at 1 p. m. Saturday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Thurston, of Sharon, Pa. His death, believed due to infirmities of age followed an illness of one week.

The body will be brought to Marion and is expected to arrive at 11 a. m. Tuesday. It will be taken immediately to St. Paul's Episcopal church, where the rector, the Rev. S. S. Hardy, will conduct funeral services at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Marion cemetery.

Mr. Shields, a retired stone-mason, resided here until recently, when he and his wife went to Sharon to make their home with their daughter. He was a native of Athens county, O., born Sept. 5, 1847. His parents, who were both natives of the same county, were David and Eliza Jeffers Shields. Mr. Shields and Miss Margaret Patterson were united in marriage in Athens county in 1878. He was a member of St. Paul's church here and of the Masonic and I. O. O. F. lodges, of Coolville.

Surviving him are his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Thurston and Mrs. Nona Archer, both of Sharon, a son, Ernest Shields of the Holland pk., Marion R. F. D. No. 3; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Rice, of Denver, Colo.; a brother, Asa Shields of Tuppers Plains, O., and six grandsons.

Listerine kills 200,000,000 germs in 15 seconds

Did you realize that Listerine was so powerful?

Hard to believe, isn't it, when you reflect how pleasant and safe Listerine is?

Yet in repeated tests employing the stubborn B. Typhosus (typhoid) germ, used by the Government to test antiseptics, full strength Listerine killed 200 millions in 15 seconds!

Now you can understand why you should use Listerine to check ordinary colds and sore throat—both caused by germs.

Keep a bottle handy and use it daily, especially after exposure to germ-laden crowds. It helps you ward off trouble. Write for our elaborate free book "Personal Hygiene."

UNEMPLOYMENT TO BE INVESTIGATED

Census May Be Taken Up with View of Ending Disputes

Washington, Nov. 26—Every phase of unemployment will be investigated during the coming session of congress by the senate committee on education and labor, Senator James Couzens, Republican of Michigan, announced today.

The committee will consider means of determining the number of unemployed, methods of relieving the condition and the situation which may be brought about in the future through a virtual revolution of industrial methods.

One of the first efforts of the committee will be devoted to methods of taking an unemployment census, with a view of ending disputes which marked the recent presidential campaign, when the number of unemployed was placed at from 1,000,000 to 7,000,000 by campaign orators.

The so-called Hoover $3,000,000,000 building reserve plan and the five-day week proposals of the American Federation of Labor also are expected to be considered.

"We plan to take up the LaFollette resolution authorizing an inquiry into unemployment soon after the session opens," Senator Couzens said.

"We shall try to reach every angle of the question, to consider means of obtaining authentic figures on unemployment, find the causes and seek remedies."

GRAND JURY PROBES ROTHSTEIN SLAYING

Sidney Stayer, Business Associate of Victim, Held at Material Witness

New York, Nov. 26—The grand jury today took the lid off the Arnold Rothstein murder case to see what they could see.

Meanwhile, police announced they had placed under arrest their first material witness in connection with the slaying of the gamester extraordinary. He is Sidney Stager, 36, business associate of Rothstein.

Singer was once arrested by federal authorities in connection with an alleged international narcotic smuggling ring. Federal officials have said that Rothstein was long known as one of the "higher ups" in a dope smuggling trust. He was being shadowed by government agents up until the night of his assassination.

Stager, arrested at the same hotel, curiously enough, where Rothstein was lured to his death, underwent a severe grilling today. Police declined to say what information relative to the gambler's murder was obtained.

Fifty witnesses were scheduled to parade before the grand jury starting today. District Attorney Joab Banton said that he would seek indictments of George (Hump) McManus "and others."

McManus, brother of a New York police lieutenant, is alleged to have been one of the men in room 349 of the Park Central hotel where Rothstein was "stood on the spot" supposedly for welching on a gambling debt. Mrs. Ruth Keyes, pretty Chicago clothing model, through a drinking flirtation previous to the shooting, identified McManus, according to police.

PLAN RECEPTION

Catholic Organizations to Welcome New Pastor Friday Night

A reception for the Rev. Father William J. Spickerman, newly-appointed pastor of St. Mary's church here, will be held Friday night in the Knights of Columbus rooms, it was announced today.

The reception is being sponsored by the Knights of Columbus and other Catholic organizations and will be in the nature of a welcome to Father Spickerman, who is expected here Thursday.

Father Spickerman comes here from Bridgetown, Cincinnati suburb. The Rev. Father Herbert McDevitt, assistant pastor, is serving as pastor until the arrival of Father Spickerman.

MRS. ELLA WILLEY CLAIMED BY DEATH

Succumbs at Home West of Owens Following Long Illness

Mrs. Ella Peak Willey, wife of Kora Willey, died at 9:45 o'clock Sunday morning at her home two miles west of Owens on the Green Camp-Owens pk. Her death resulted from a lengthy illness.

Short funeral services will be held at her late home at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday noon after which the body will be taken to the Marlborough church, near Ashley, for funeral services and burial at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Willey was born one mile west of Westfield, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Peak. She lived in the vicinity of Westfield practically all her life, coming to Marion eight years ago.

Surviving her, with the husband, are two sisters, Mrs. Charles Glaze, of Chicago, and Mrs. Ward Christians, of Colorado Springs, Colo., and four brothers, Richard Peak Jr., Barnhart st., Otto Peak, Waldo, Elmer Peak, Lansing Mich., and Howley Peak, Westfield.

HOSPITAL REPORT

Three New Patients Received, Three Discharged

Three new patients were admitted at City hospital over the week-end and three were discharged. The new cases were Ivan Brown, 1069 Uncapher av., who underwent an abdominal operation this morning; Mrs. Clyde Harrington, 596 Bartram av., who is undergoing treatment, and Miss Carrie Ruth Farmer, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Farmer, 551 North Greenwood st., who underwent an operation for appendicitis last night.

Mrs. Harrington and Miss Farmer were removed to the hospital in the W. C. Boyd invalid car.

Cases discharged were Mrs. Frank Sheele and infant son, who were removed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Kunkler, 577 Miami st., Sunday afternoon in the W. C. Boyd invalid car, Mrs. R. L. DOCTOR SHOWS QUICKEST WAY TO END HEAD COLDS

Many Here Who Try Hospital Method in Own Homes Get Almost Instant Relief

Quick, sure relief—then the joy of waking up without the misery caused by neglecting a cold at this season.

This experience of Miss Gertrude Curry has been shared recently by numbers of people in Marion and vicinity. For doctors are now recommending home use of a hospital method that ends colds quickly—often in a few hours—yet is inexpensive and pleasant to take.

Miss Cary, for example, neglected her cold until her eyes became inflamed, her nose stopped up and congestion started spreading so fast she called her doctor. Relief began almost instantly when he advised Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a hospital certified compound of wild cherry, terpin hydrate and other ingredients used in treating even extreme hospital cases.

With the first pleasant swallow she felt its comforting, healing warmth. In an hour or so the medication was absorbed by her system, loosening up congestion. When she awoke the next morning there was practically no sign of the cold—and in another day or so congestion had disappeared entirely.

Note: Other cases reported daily—all certified by attending physician.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral now and you, too, will feel like a different person tomorrow. At all druggists—60c and twice as much in $1.00 hospital size.

land, Nov. 26—Grim, unsmiling went about their tasks at port here today, wondering the jinx, which has claimed ots, in separate crashes in n Ohio, within the last 24 would strike next.

two men killed were listed e flower of America's commerers.

were Lawrence H. Garrison, as burned to death last night he National Air Transport Co. which he was flying from New rashed at Bristolville, near , O.; and Tilden "Pete" Johnontinental Air Service pilot, racked up" near West Lebanmiles southwest of Massillon, pilots were carrying air mail th crashes are believed to have i from heavy snow falls, which d flying vision.

son, who was 21, the youngest air mail pilot in the country, had been missing since 3 o'clock yesterday morning when he took off from here on his regular run to Louisville. Yesterday afternoon his plane with Johnson's body wedged in the fuselage was found by boys who were hunting muskrats. The youthful pilot's plane had plunged, nose downward, into a swamp near West Lebanon. Searching planes were flying about in the vicinity at the time of the discovery.

Garrison, in distress in the thick of a blinding snow fall, had sought to land in a large, vacant pasture at Bristolville. He negotiated the landing successfully but ran directly into a deep ditch. His plane immediately caught fire.

One hundred pounds of mail, bound for Louisville, was taken from Johnson's plane and rushed south by train. No mail was found, however, in the charred wreckage of Garrison's plane.

Johnson's body was to be brought here today by his mother, Mrs. Ellen Johnson, county clerk, of Guymon, Ind. The youth had been flying since he was 13, receiving his piloting instruction at St. Louis, part of it from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh who was then an airmail pilot.

Garrison, a former army flier, is survived by his widow, who makes her home at Plainfield, N. J. Garrison's body was so badly burned that it could not be recognized. It was removed to Cortland by the Trumbull county coroner.

THREE LOSE LIVES

Wife One of Victims Because She Flew With Husband

Edgerton, Nov. 26—Because she could not be dissuaded from accompanying her aviator husband on a risky flight through a blinding snowstorm on their eighth wedding anniversary, the body of the young wife of Edwin H. Basset, 33, lay side by side with that of her husband here today.

The plane crash which claimed the lives of the couple also cost the life of Glen R. Butt, publisher of a weekly Cleveland newspaper.

Plans of the Bassetts to spend a quiet evening at their home in Rocky River, Cleveland suburb, were abruptly halted Saturday night when the pilot was summoned to the Cleveland airport to take Butt to Cambridge City, Ind., where he was to join his wife and child.

The eight-passenger monoplane, with the bodies of the three victims crumpled in the wreckage, was found near here late Saturday night.

PROGRAM GIVEN

Choir and Organist Contribute Numbers at Presbyterian Church

Mrs. Harry T. Williams, church organist, and members of the choir of First Presbyterian church, under direction of Charles Gelmer, presented an all musical program last night at the church. The musicale was well-attended.

At the service yesterday morning the Rev. Howard L. Olewiler, pastor, preached a missionary sermon, "The Other Man."

Last night's program opened with an organ prelude, "Song of Gratitude," Cole. Mrs. Williams then played a descriptive organ number, "Sketches of a City," Nevin. The choir sang, "Break Forth Into Joy," Simper, and Leonard Young was heard in a vocal solo, "I Love the Lord," West.

"Evening," Nevin, was played as an offertory by Mrs. Williams, after which Mrs. Clyde Coulter was heard in a piano number, "Soaring," Schumann. The choir sang, "Praise the Lord," Randegger and the program closed with the organ rendering of "Finale in A," Harris, as a postlude.

DIES OF INJURIES

Zanesville, Nov. 26—Funeral arrangements were being made here today for William P. Dunlap, who died in Bethesda hospital here of injuries suffered last week when he was struck by an automobile said to have been driven by J. E. Link, south of this city. Link was passing another car and failed to see the aged man, it was said.

DREAD NEURITIS IS CONQUERED BY MODERN MEDICINE

Arms and Shoulders Were Solid Mass of Aches and Pains; New Konjola Restored Her Health

MRS. LEAH SNIDER

"I am praising Konjola because it is the only medicine that relieved me of neuritis and I hope that others will profit from my experience," said Mrs. Leah Snider, 641 Brooklyn avenue, Dayton, Ohio.

"It seemed impossible to get relief from that dreadful neuritis. Dull, sickening pains hurt me constantly and it become an impossibility to use my arms. As the days passed, this ailment became more severe until the ailent affected me clear back to my shoulders. At times, I felt sick all over. I lost weight and strength until I was but a shell of my former self.

"I had no faith in any medicine, but I was prevailed upon to give Konjola a trial and what a blessing it is that I did. Right from the start, it helped me and as I continued with the treatment, the pains and aches eased up until they had disappeared completely. Now there is not a trace of that ailment anywhere in my body and I feel just like a different person. Words fail me when I try to praise Konjola."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two herbs, extracted from nature's plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action, the effect of this Konjola of the entire system brings about a condition of restoring the old time health and vigor.

Konjola is now being introduced in this section by the Konjola Man, who is making regular visits to Marion. He is now registered at the [illegible] Hotel where he will be glad to meet all who are interested in this remarkable medicine.

From all over the world come reports of the reliability of the new FORD

YOU are buying proved performance when you buy the new Ford. You know exactly what it will do. There is nothing of an experiment about it.

Letters from users show a delivered value far beyond expectations. Almost without exception they stress reliability. You sense a feeling of sincere pride in the oft-repeated phrase—"Let me tell you what my new Ford did."

A well-known tire company, solely to test tires, drove a new Ford more than 90,000 miles in six months. Throughout that time, the car was run day and night, an average of twenty-two hours out of every twenty-four. The entire cost of repair parts was only $38 for the entire 90,000 miles.

Another tire company, making a similar test, drove the new Ford more than 80,000 miles in a short period, at a cost per mile that was fully 60% less than any figure it had previously known.

More than 8000 miles in three weeks!

One of the first of the new Fords was driven from Dearborn, Michigan, to Los Angeles to San Francisco to New York and back to Dearborn—a distance of 8328 miles—in twenty-one days. Through ice and sleet, up mountain peaks, through desert sands, over macadam and deeply rutted dirt roads, it traveled at an average speed of 40.9 miles an hour.

FEATURES OF THE NEW FORD CAR

Beautiful low lines
Choice of colors
Remarkable acceleration
Smoothness at all speed.
40 horse-power
55 to 65 miles an hour
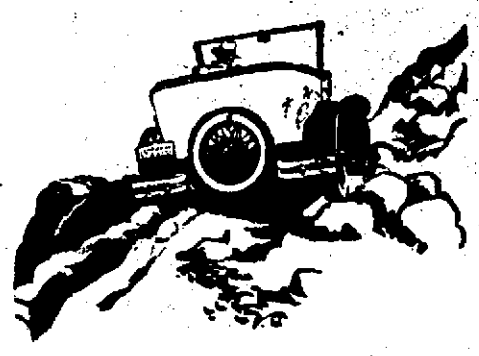
Fully enclosed, silent six-brake system
New transverse springs
Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers
Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield
Economy of operation
Reliability and long life



ON September 13, 1928, a new Ford car was driven to the summit of Ben Nevis, the highest mountain in Great Britain. This extremely difficult and dangerous ascent was made over rock-strewn, almost impassable mountain trails—an example of the unusual stamina and performance of the new Ford. The Ford is the only car that has ever made this ascent.

Practically a year of average driving was done in three weeks, yet the entire trip was made without the need of a single major adjustment or repair.

Another new Ford, as a test of hill-climbing, was driven from San Bernardino, California, over the National Old Trails and Swartout Valley Highway, to the Big Pines Recreation Camp. The entire 36.2 miles were made in high gear—a particularly severe test because of the sharp turns and a stretch of 5.7 miles where the grade rises precipitously from 3000 to 6075 feet.

Previously this same car had broken the time record between Los Angeles and Phoenix, Arizona, and had made a 500-mile circle of Muroc Dry Lake in the Mohave Desert at an average speed of 62.51 miles an hour.

In Germany, the new Ford won first prize in one of the most severe all-around tests to which a motor car has ever been subjected—the utility and reliability contest of the Allgemeiner Deutscher Automobil Club. This contest included not only speed and reliability but starting, acceleration, hill-climbing, fuel economy and braking efficiency.

A part of the very life of this country

Other incidents are even more dramatic. A letter from Albany, N. Y., tells how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield of the new Ford prevented injuries from flying glass when a physician's car was forced off the road into a telegraph pole. A news-reel photographer tells how the brakes on the new Ford saved his life when, speeding through a blizzard to film a shipwreck, he found himself suddenly on the very edge of a 50-foot cliff. From a far western state a husband and father writes gratefully to tell how the sturdiness of the new Ford "saved the lives of my family" when the car was struck by a hit-and-run driver.

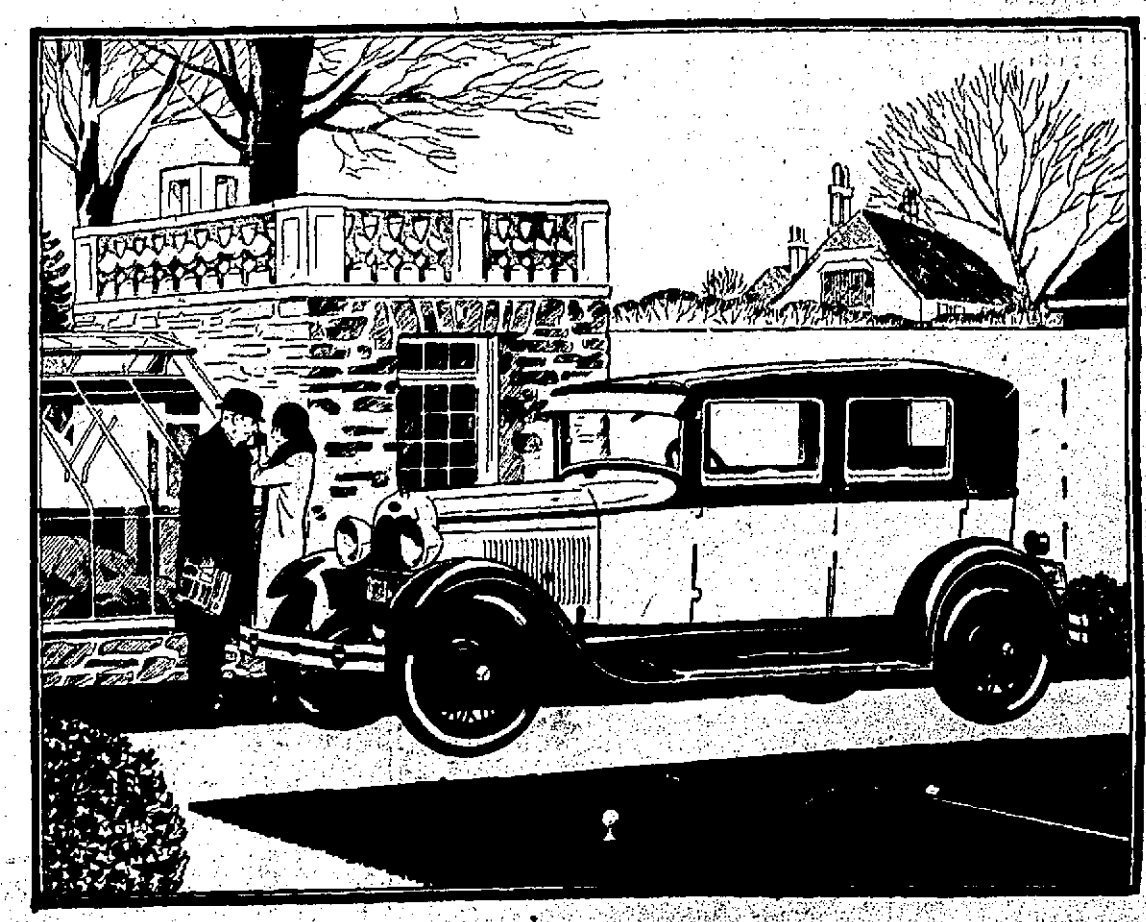
Further tribute to the sturdiness, reliability and general all-around performance of the new Ford is shown in the repeated and growing purchases by Federal and city governments, by police departments, and by large industrial companies which keep definite day-by-day cost records. The new Ford has been chosen only after exhaustive, competitive tests covering speed, smoothness, acceleration, hill-climbing, oil and gas consumption, safety, comfort, and low up-keep cost.

The reason for such complete and well-rounded performance is found in the fundamental Ford policy of doing business.

A purpose beyond sales or profits

The new Ford was not designed primarily for sales and profits. It goes beyond men and materials. It is the expression of an ideal—an ideal that looks toward bringing the benefits of modern, economical transportation to all the people.

Back of the new Ford are manufacturing and production methods as unusual as the car itself. Without these, it would be impossible to give you the value that is in the new Ford. Because of them, it is unquestionably the best motor car that can be made at a low price without sacrificing quality anywhere along the line.



Long, low and fleet are the lines and strikingly beautiful the colors of the new Fordor Sedan. Richly appointed throughout, in the manner of a custom-built car. An exceptionally comfortable car because of the new transverse springs, Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers and the generous space provided in front and rear compartments.

Daily Proverb—"Praises are a spur to virtue, but flatteries are a subtle poison."

A Texan finished the payment of an election bet last week by rolling a peanut eleven miles with his nose. Tennessee is right! Man was never evolved from the monkey!

The French parliament has doubled the salary of the president of France, making it 3,600,000 francs, about $111,000, which strikes us as some salary for what is practically a sinecure.

The Civil Liberties union is all worked up again over the report from Paris that Count Michael Karolyi has again been refused a visa to enter the United States. By the way, did anybody ever hear of the Civil Liberties union ever being worked up over the interests of a patriotic citizen of the United States?

Taxes on cigarets for the first three months of the fiscal year of 1929 amounted to $118,226,769, an increase of $12,740,176 over the amount collected for the same period a year ago. In October alone taxes were paid on 9,921,536,623 cigarets, an increase of 1,361,139,533 over October, 1927. That's the trouble with the women folks. They always go to extremes.

Since election day the board of trustees of the Chicago sanitary district have decapitated 1,600 political employes, and about 1,000 more of the precinct workers whose labors consist chiefly in showing up on pay day and drawing from $200 to $300 a month are to feel the ax. Really, it begins to looks as though Chicago may be staging a real clean-up.

It has been so seldom in recent years that the Republicans of Ohio have been able to elect a governor that, having elected one, it hardly looks like good political judgment to stir up a party fight over political patronage. Such a course has all the earmarks of rocking the boat.

Three big English motor firms have merged in the hope of producing a better car for less money than is put out in the United States. It's hard to understand why English manufacturers should not succeed in such a plan, considering the decided advantage they have in labor cost, for there can be no question of their ability to turn out high-class cars.

A New Jersey corporation has developed a silencer for airplane motors which reduces their roar to a mere hiss. If the silencer is generally adopted, it's going to make it mighty hard for those Newfoundland folks to hear an airplane overhead ever time one is lost somewhere out in the Atlantic.

Acting on the complaints of the parents of high school pupils and other young people employed about Hollywood, three men have been indicted for distributing motion pictures containing scenes so lurid that the members of the federal grand jury before whom they were being shown ordered the operator of the machine used in the grand jury room to shut off the current. Evidently the advertised regeneration of the film industry didn't take.

Stamp People Dissatisfied.

We glean from a Cleveland paper that short work was made by stamp collectors of the 20,000 copies of the Molly Pitcher issue of two-cent stamps assigned to the post-office in that city, the most of them being bought in blocks of 100.

The new stamps are the regular two-cent issue in carmine showing the head of Washington upon which the name, Molly Pitcher, has been surcharged in black ink.

The post office department issued 10,000,000 of the stamps, October 20, in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the battle of Monmouth, which were first put on sale in Washington and at Redbank and Freehold, New Jersey, the post-offices nearest the scene of the battle. Later they were allotted to post-offices throughout the country, as we understand it, on request.

"Considerable dissatisfaction," says the paper, "arose among collectors over the fact that a surcharged issue was printed instead of a special issue with an appropriate picture. The surcharged stamps were snapped up, nevertheless."

So stamp collectors expressed dissatisfaction? Well, that certainly is too bad. It's a burning shame that the government should treat stamp collectors so shabbily, when all it had to do to give joy to them was to get out new drawings and new plates. What are a few thousands of the public's money compared with the happiness of the stamp collectors!

Frankly, we never thought of it before, but why should the government print special issues, even though they be but surcharged issues, if they are to be cornered by stamp collectors and dealers for commercialization?

The New Paper Currency.

As has been previously announced, the new paper money which ultimately will replace all the United States paper money at present in use, will be put into circulation July 1 or shortly thereafter.

The new money will be a radical departure from anything heretofore used in the way of currency in this country. The first and most decided variation from the present paper currency will be the size of the bills, which are to be 6 5-16 by 2 11-16 inches. Upon the faces of all the denominations will appear the portrait of some famous American. The head of Washington is to be shown upon the one-dollar bill, Jefferson's likeness will be shown upon the two-dollar bill and that of Lincoln upon the five. The $10 bill will carry the portrait of Hamilton, the $20 bill that of Jackson and the $50 that of Grant. The features of Franklin will appear upon the $100 bill and upon the $500 bill those of McKinley. The $1,000 denomination will bear the likeness of Cleveland, the $5,000 that of Madison and the $10,000 that of Chase. So much for the faces of the bills.

The backs of the new bills, however, will offer another radical departure. The two-dollar bill and all denominations over $100, will have fancy ornamental backs, but the twos, fives, tens, twenties and fifties will show cuts of noted buildings of the land. The wisdom of this is apparent. People may not easily remember the faces upon bills in common use, but they will readily be able to distinguish the different denominations by the pictures of buildings upon their backs, speedily learning to associate a given structure with the denomination it marks, and thus lessen the danger they will run either in making or receiving change. And the new backs will provide another safeguard. It will make far more hazardous an attempt to pass a raised bill. There is no danger that an attempt will be made to raise some lower denomination to $500 or above, for one who is proffered a bill of $500 or over will give it close scrutiny before accepting it, hence the pictures of buildings will not be necessary on the higher denominations, but it would require an exceptional degree of folly to prompt a criminal to raise a two-dollar bill to a twenty, let us say, should the back of the two-dollar bill carry a picture of the national capitol while the twenty bears a cut of the Lincoln memorial or the Washington monument.

There will be one danger, however, a danger which inevitably obtains when a new form of paper currency is issued, against which the public should exercise every possible precaution, and that will be the danger the public will run of being victimized by counterfeits. It is a duty the public owes itself to familiarize itself with the new bills which are common in ordinary business transactions. The better the public knows them, the more liable it will be to detect counterfeits and avoid being victimized. Happily, the public will have time to do this before there will be danger of the putting into circulation of counterfeits, for counterfeiters will have to have the new bills at hand before beginning their operations, and it will require quite a little time for them to get out the necessary plates from which to print them. Of course, we have been told how bills may be reproduced by a photographic process, but there is little danger in such counterfeits. The man who could be fooled by one of them, could be fooled just as readily by the use of a tobacco or soap coupon.

Income taxes collected for the first three months of the fiscal year of 1929 were $519,351,673 against $550,519,298 for the first quarter of the past fiscal year. Some of the hard-working spreaders of joy and sunshine in paragraphs must be holding out on Uncle Sam.

Not Sold Out to Wall Street.

It is pleasing to note that both the state department and the White House are opposed to any plan under or by reason of which the United States would pledge itself to guarantee the political and financial stability of Nicaragua.

In the order named, both Secretary Kellogg and President Coolidge made plain, last week, that they disapproved of any and all proposals that the United States government should supervise the finances of Nicaragua in order to assure that country an American loan, or for any other purpose.

The position of President Coolidge, and that of Secretary Kellogg is practically the same, is reported from Washington to be that, although it is realized that when American citizens invest their money, they want some strong guarantee of security, yet it ought not be suggested this government be required to intervene or take a direct part in supervision of such transactions.

It looks very much as though New York banking interests will have to forego hope of getting Uncle Sam to aid them in disposing of Nicaraguan securities to the public at a profitable commission by standing as a guarantor for their collection. Contrary to all insinuations and charges to such effect during the recent campaign, the administration has not sold out to Wall street.

The fifteen politicians convicted of lawlessness in connection with the Chicago primaries will escape with fines, the members of the jury having agreed to a compromise rather than disagree. In a word, the offenders, who faced charges ranging from intimidation to murder, escape with gentle slaps on their wrists.

General Secretary William R. Boyd, of the American Petroleum institute, denies the report that President Coolidge has been offered the presidency of the institute, stating that the board of directors has never so much as discussed the matter. At times we are inclined to wonder if this thing of lining up jobs for a holder of the presidency is wholly in accord with the tenets of taste.

STRENGTHENING THE SOUTH AMERICAN TIE.

Two Meals Sufficient.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Some time ago I had a letter from a Philadelphia man which was filled with good suggestions. He says he always reads my health articles in his home paper. The particular one which excited his interest related to headache. I am much interested in what this man says about his own habits. He is sixty-two years of age, he says, but feels as well as he did at thirty.

My correspondent says that his business keeps him closely confined to the office. He does not get as much exercise as he would like to take. But he does manage to get in a couple of games of golf every week.

He must be a remarkable man because, after going 'round eighteen holes in golf, he says he seems to feel as though he were "just warmed up for a real game." His contemporaries in age, he says, "could no more do this than fly." It really is a remarkable record.

It would be interesting to know how much the eating habits of this man have to do with his excellent physical condition. He complains that most men who do not have as much exercise as he does are as a rule big eaters. They do not eat much at breakfast time, but always take lunch and then go to a big dinner. Then, too, some of them are likely to take another heavy meal late at night. There is no wonder they complain of constipation and headache! My Philadelphia friend takes a good breakfast every morning. He never eats any lunch and never eats anything late at night. He does take a good dinner at 6 o'clock. By the time he is ready for bed, his meal is well digested; he sleeps well and gets up in the morning "feeling like a million dollars."

There is no question at all that men along in life make a great mistake if they eat too much. All they need food for is to repair the waste of the day. Growth was long ago completed and it is undesirable to lay on fat. All a man needs at this time of life is just enough food to furnish the energy and the immediate repairs.

There can be no doubt that in eliminating lunch, the stomach is given a long period of rest every day. With enough water to cleanse the tissues the system will get along well with the limited amount of food my correspondent takes.

If the stomach is cluttered with food, and as the result constipation develops, there is no wonder there is headache, hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure and all sorts of disagreeable symptoms.

Shipla living, plenty of sunlight, moderate exercise and temperate eating, are really the secret of good health and long life.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

M. W. M.—Q—What should a girl of nineteen, five feet seven inches tall weigh?

2—Are fruits fattening? Is jello fattening?

A—You should weigh about 140 pounds.

2—Not as a rule—bananas and grapes being exceptions. No.

M. A. R. Q—What do you advise for enlarged pores?

A—Hot and cold applications used alternately for five or ten minutes night and morning should help to reduce enlarged pores. The excessive use of powder and cold cream will clog the pores thus causing them to become enlarged and coarsening the grain of the skin.

* * *

L. W. H. Q—What would you advise for intestinal worms?

A—Careful diet and elimination are both important in addition to the treatment.

M. M. J. How can I reduce the calves of the legs?

A—It is difficult to reduce weight in any part of the body without reducing in general. Exercise and massage may help.

* * *

M. Q—Will the juice of half a lemon in water, three times a day make me thin?

A—No, but would not be wise to take it to excess

F. K. Q—What will correct the habit of sleeping with the mouth open?

A—The habit is often due to a nasal obstruction preventing proper breathing or a catarrhal condition. Have the nose and throat examined.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

H. N. Q—Is it injurious for a baby to wear short stockings during the winter weather? My home is warm and the baby is warmly clad when taken out-of-doors.

2—What would cause a strong odor of ammonia in the baby's kidney elimination?

A—No, if the baby is used to wearing them and you have noticed no ill effects.

2—Probably some fault in the diet, too much fat, for instance. Watch his diet.

Editorial Opinion.

MAN FAILURE.

So far from lightening the tragedy of the Vestris, the accumulating testimony tends to darken its shadows. Touching the one indispensable item of every venture by sea or land, man power, the record becomes more disheartening with every revelation of truth.

The temptation in this age of invention, is to turn to machinery for succor. When the Titanic sank there were insufficient lifeboats, and the cry went up for more boats. Ships have the boats today. But of what avail are they if a captain lacks the judgment to order their launching or his subordinates lack the seamanship to lower them safely?

Here is the point, and the vital point, we think, at which the question of a line's profits touches the loss of the Vestris. For those who insist upon a quick and easy explanation, and demand a scapegoat ready at hand to blame, the charge that lives were risked to escape salvage offers a simple answer. But no evidence confirms this explanation of Captain Carey's extraordinary conduct. No sordid motive lay behind the bungling of the boats. Seamanship failed tragically on the bridge and upon the decks of the Vestris in those late hours, by all the testimony now available. Looking back at the long roll of British heroes of the sea—the record of craftsmanship as of courage holds no brighter chapter—who can avoid a feeling of shock and grievous loss? Who can escape the thought that if that most precious possession of the human race, skilled courage, has been weakened at this strongest point, some responsibility must be shared by the business of shipping which has permitted this decline?

The question is larger than any specific item of salvage or repairs. The fact seems inescapable that unless the master of the Vestris had failed in judgment—through what mental stroke no one is ever likely to know—and the officers beneath him had failed in seamanship no lives need have been lost. The Vestris was not a crowded ship sunk swiftly in collision. There was ample time. There were ample boats. The listing of the ship was a certain handicap. But the boats on the lower side could have held all the passengers, and there was no serious difficulty in launching these. Why the women and children should have been lowered away on the other side, where launching was difficult and hazardous, is, perhaps, the most appalling of all the mysteries of the Vestris. It still stands unexplained as the blackest mark of the day. Granted able seamanship and neither skimping on repairs nor faulty inspection would have cost a life.

The question plainly lies deeper, in the whole conduct of the merchant marine since steam and the great liners transformed the character of seafaring. Joseph Conrad wrote feelingly of the change. The master has declined in prestige and power. The vast scale of the business and its machinelike precision have tended to reduce the respect paid to the human factor. Courage did not fail on the Vestris. To the credit of officers, crew and passengers, it can be said that no petty motives prevailed. The man failure that appeared was a failure of training of command.

No one will wish to speak harshly of fellow-beings who, confronted by a grave test for which they were ill-prepared, failed to rise to the occasion. The occasion calls not for hasty condemnation, but for sober study and reflection. This country is returning to the sea after several generations of absence. The chief lesson of the Vestris, so far as the record thus far discloses, is the supreme importance not of machines, but of men. For its navy as for its merchant marine, America must develop seamen who are fit descendants of its old and high traditions. We hope that no demand for laws or rules or resolution will blind eyes to this major lesson of the Vestris. —New York Herald Tribune.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Nov. 26—Diary of a modern Pepys. Up and so much confusion what with the maid beating up the room, the dog barking and the riveting next door that I despaired of labor, and off by coach with Basil Woon, the scrivener, and breakfasted at a bleak inn in Van Cortland park. And on the way he pointed out E. Phillips Oppenheim, the English tayle writer.

Wandered about the upper reaches of Manhattan and surprised at the new city that has grown up there in a few years, and so with my wife to Hugh and Sadie Murray's where came Lady Drummond Hay and Karl von Wiegand, who crossed in the Zeppelin, and several others.

All evening at a window listening to a fellow foxed with drink who stood before a mirror sermonizing on the intolerance of the world and at times broke down with fits of sobbing. Then working until morning broke and with a great weariness to bed.

Young folk with the wherewithal are also going in for night flying with a few acrobatic didoes on the side at a field opened on Long Island. The aerial course requires fifty-four hours time and an expenditure of $800.

The decorus animation once as pronounced as its pall of cigaret smoke is missing even in the night clubs labeled "select" these days. They inspire a gaiety like that of losing a filling out of a tooth just as you start out for a good time. In a visit to several the other evening after theater the biggest crowd numbered fourteen not including waiters who stood in attitudes of wistful indolence and in another members of our party were the only suckers of the evening. Proprietors hold on believing that as things could be no worse they might improve.

In the last club I ran out of money—an old Scotch custom—when I had reached the hat check girl. I thought one of those finger-snapping drunks demanding her attention would save me from embarrassment, but at the revolving door I looked back and she was giving me one of her you-dirty-little-so-and-so looks. And only Gene Buck with a quick yank saved me from getting caught in the revolving door

A comedian turned down a $600 a week offer with a successful road show because he preferred to remain on Broadway. He is now in the cast, but at $150 a week.

Any number of stage folk refuse in the throaty manner to leave Broadway save, perhaps, for a brief tour of what are known in the trade as "key cities"—important big stands near the metropolis that are overnight jumps from the Rialto. That may be why many wind up with a "benefit."

The truth is performers save more on the road than in New York. Proof of this is evidenced by many of our richest actors—David Warfield, Otis Skinner, George M. Cohan, Al Jolson and others—who in their hey-dey never hesitated to take to the kerosene circuit. It enlarges their following. People who see them in smaller cities want to see how they look on Broadway.

The most amusing display of "artistic" temperament" among actors for the season was that of an old son from London who spent three days at rehearsal and then took a boat home. He said they insisted on putting ice in his drinking water when the jolly fruit demanded it un-iced. Sounds silly, but those of us who have cried for ice water in London understand.

The other evening I was the solitary gray-head at a party of young moderns. Youth these days is a mental intoxicant. Before I knew it I was doing my adagio dance, singing Frankie and Johnny and otherwise trying to be funny and did not get home until 3 o'clock in the morning. A few evenings like that and the folks will take me out of Yale and put me to work.—Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

America's Beginnings.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Doctor Ales Hrdlicka is unkind to America. He will not allow her to have been inhabited by human beings longer than about 5,000 years. This is such a trifling bit of time, compared with the millions of years of antiquity now ascribed to the aboriginal inhabitants of Asia, that one may well wonder at the slowness with which the Asiatics got across the Bering strait—Dr. Hrdlicka's favorite intercontinental highway—since he says that it was almost "as simple and natural a step as crossing New York harbor might be."

He will hear nothing about the human remains found in America which other investigators believe belonged to a vastly earlier date. No observations or conclusions pointing in that direction are accepted by him. They do not fit his theory or answer his tests. To the outsider the controversy resembles that over the alleged neolithic discoveries at Glozel, France, which have set the theorists and the excavators at loggerheads in Europe. There they have gone to law, and the "doctors" are finding out what the barristers can do when they get a chance at archaeology. It is perilous to let a theory harden too quickly, as is shown by the recent upset of the beautiful "solar system" theory of the atomic electrons. A theory must be kept in solution for safety as long as there are undiscovered facts lurking about like Indians in war paint.

But, to return to Doctor Hrdlicka's Asiatics in America, consider this statement quoted from him: "Another important point which can be demonstrated through collections made during the last few years is that the people coming over the Bering strait and sea were not crude barbarians, but were bringing with them a rich and highly-developed culture, exceeding that of the Eskimo or Alaska Indian of the present time. This suggests strongly that the origin of the native cultures on this continent, just as the diversification of language, may not have been wholly evolved on American soil, as hitherto believed."

Yet, he pictures these people of such highly-developed culture emerging from the vast "inhospitable region" of Siberia, "where famine and cold always threaten," as he himself says, and from the remote northeastern corner of Siberia seeing "signs of a more pleasing shore, freer of snow and ice," thirty miles across. So they went over, in the face of "warmer winds," helped by islands, and—found themselves in Alaska, with the long and bitter road that Klondikers remember, separating them from the genial regions of the great continent whose population they were to establish and whose varied cultures they were to implant and develop!

These theories and the observations by which they are bolstered must be received with great respect because of the hard and earnest work and the scientific devotion that they represent. But America is a huge continent and very old. She stretches almost from pole to pole, with trayersible oceans washing her shores on both sides for tens of thousands of miles, where signs abound of communication with the eastern world in lower and more attractive latitudes than those of the ever frozen north. That human beings came across Bering strait and Bering sea is on the face of it probable, independent of the proofs accumulated by Doctor Hrdlicka. But were they the only incomers, or the most important ones? And, on the other hand, are we to believe that all the alleged discoveries indicating the existence of early man in America are illusory? We see that the modern doctors of philosophy are as apt to disagree as were the old-type doctors of the medical profession. Such disagreement is all right, since it indicates the diversity of the ways to truth and the earnestness with which those ways are pursued. But those who are not doctors should watch and wait, and meanwhile use a little philosophy of their own.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

A Chicago judge has ruled that women who want permanent waves must abide by the consequences, if any. In the case in point the burned beauty could not collect a dollar in damage. Nothing worth having is altogether cheap and there is no doubt that beauty is very much worth having. There are few hazards in the acquirement of good looks, even when the subject gets a bad start. And doubtless any woman would spend vastly more time and endure much more torture for the glittering results.

Surgeons have recently transplanted the lens of one man's eye on the diseased eye of another. The man who gave up the lens couldn't use it any way as his eye was too badly affected with another ailment. The marvels of surgery fascinates the mind. We seem to be moving toward the age in which there will be almost no physical task too great for medical science to undertake. But the life spark, the life principle, life itself—that eludes research. It is here and it is gone. Where does it go? Or does it go at all? The processes of life are studied and learned in the minutest degree. Life itself eludes.

It was Thursday.

Gutzon Borglum's magnificent equestrian statue of General Philip H. Sheridan in Sheridan circle, Washington, was dedicated.

The losses sustained in the Uhler & Phillips fire other than those of the drygoods firm were: Mrs. E. E. Powers, $7,400 with insurance of $5,200; Mrs. J. F. McNeal, $18,000 with $10,000 insurance; L. B. McNeal, $3,000 with $2,400 insurance; Mrs. Emma Castner, $57.50; Mrs. Jennie Thomas, $500; C. C. Fisher, $183. The loss of Mrs. J. A. Wolford had not yet been adjusted.

The Star told of the death of Thomas Graham, ninety, and seventy-eight years a resident of the county, the day before at his home three miles southeast of Marion.

The Star reported the marriage by Justice Charles E. Gumpf, the night before, of Miss Nellie M. Foster and Mr. William J. Gidley, of New York.

The union Thanksgiving service was held at Epworth M. E. church. Rev. F. H. Zachel delivering the address.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Merkel entertained with a ball at Huber hall, the Star said, the night before.

RUPTURE
SHIELD EXPERT HERE

E. J. Meinhardt, of Chicago, the well-known expert, will personally be at the Harding Hotel, Marion, Ohio, on Friday only, Nov. 30, from 9:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. Mr. Meinhardi says:

"The Meinhardi Rupture Shield" will not only retain the Rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case—usually giving instantaneous relief withstanding all strain regardless of the size or location of the Rupture.

"The Meinhardi Rupture Shield" has no understraps. It is also perfectly sanitary and practically indestructible and can be worn while bathing.

Ruptures often cause Stomach Troubles, Backache, Constipation, Nervousness and other ailments which promptly disappear after the Rupture is properly retained.

HOOVER MAKES FIRST TWO CALLS TODAY

President-Elect Scheduled To Stop in Honduras and Salvador

Aboard U. S. S. Maryland (Via Arlington Radio Station), Nov. 26—President-elect Herbert Hoover was to make the first two "friendship" calls on his Latin-American "good will" itinerary today at Amapala, Honduras, and La Union, Salvador.

The battleship Maryland was to anchor six miles offshore from Amapala this morning and the Hoover party was to immediately be taken to the city in motor launches.

Representatives of President Miguel Paz Barahona, of Honduras, and possibly the president himself, were to greet the president-elect's party. Mr. Hoover will then deliver the first message on the purpose of his tour.

Luncheon will follow, after which the entire party will be taken the 10 miles across the bay of Fonseca to La Union in the launches.

Most of the members of Salvador's cabinet are on the reception committee which will greet Mr. Hoover at La Union but it is uncertain whether President Romero Bosque, of Salvador, will be present.

"PURE BUNK," SAYS AIMEE OF INQUIRY

Evangelist Asserts She'd Be "Fine Fool To Buy Anybody's Silence"

New York, Nov. 26—"Do I look silly? Don't let any one tell you I'd be that stupid to pay $800,000 to Asa Keyes to keep him quiet. What a fine fool I'd be to buy anybody's silence?"

Thus Aimee Semple McPherson, titian-haired goddess of the Angelus Temple, speeding to Los Angeles, today branded charges under grand jury investigation that Keyes, former district attorney of Los Angeles, was bribed to drop prosecution of her famous "kidnaping" case.

Mrs. McPherson arrived on the liner Columbus and stayed in New York just long enough to sash the city and call it more wicked than naughty Paris. She is enroute to her home today for Thanksgiving turkey.

Aimee branded the renewed investigation into the alleged kidnaping into Mexico two years ago as "a form of persecution by unknown enemies." She termed the story that she had bribed up Keyes with $800,000 as "pure bunk."

Mrs. McPherson was more eager to discuss her four-month tour of Europe. She was enthusiastic about her reception in England. She claims thousand of converts.

Aimee went on to tell of Paris. She insists that France is a rich field for revivalists and regretted that she was unable to speak there because of a lack of knowledge of the language.

You can't do much with a self-made man. His workmanship was pretty thorough.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchial and throat troubles, and is excellent for building up the system after colds. Ask your druggist about Creomulsion. Take as directed and if you are not satisfied with the benefit obtained, return the empty package to your druggist and your money will be refunded.

Teacher of Local Aviation Students is Injured as Plane Crashes to Earth

Webster A. Matthews, Victim of Accident at Columbus, One of Company Giving Lessons in Flying at Marion Airport; Passenger Seriously Hurt

Webster A. Matthews, 37, of Columbus, who participated in one of several airplane crashes in Ohio over the week-end, is well known in Marion as an aviation instructor. The injured pilot is part owner in the Central Air Transportation Co., which has been giving flying lessons here the last few months. He was injured when his plane fell at Columbus Saturday.

Mathews is one of the instructors who have been giving lessons to about a dozen students here, according to Charles Whysall, chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce airport committee and one of the students of the concern.

The owners of the Central Air Transportation Co., Mathews and Theodore Leonard, have been giving instructions to students here for about three months. During that time they made weekly trips here on Sunday. Since the opening of the municipal airport they have made their headquarters there.

Go Into Tail Spin

Mathews had just taken his ship into the air Saturday afternoon with a student aviator, Max Funk, Jr., of Columbus, when they went into a tail spin at an altitude of 1,500 feet. Funk is in Grant hospital, Columbus, in a serious condition. Mathews suffered several broken ribs. His condition is improving.

Today Funk alternately emerges from a state of coma and then slips back into unconsciousness as he lies on his cot in the Columbus hospital. In his conscious moments he believes his experience at Norton Field Saturday is only a horrible nightmare, although it is grim reality to those at the field who saw the plane go into a tail spin and crash to the ground, a mass of wreckage.

Mathews Is Pilot

Mathews, according to his statement after the crash, was at the controls when the ship fell. He has absolved Funk from all blame for the mishap. It was at first believed that the student was at the controls when the accident happened.

Today the youthful aviator sees again in his dreams all the gruesome details of the 1,200 foot drop and the subsequent crash.

"I dreamed," the boy means. "'Web' and I were flying. Tailspin wasn't afraid. 'Web' at the controls. Falling fast. 'Web' working frantically with the stick. Saw the ground... we hit... I don't remember."

According to Whysall, Mathews was a pilot in the United States forces during the World war. He entered the war as a Marine aviation instructor. Later he was commissioned in the corps and served as a pilot in a bombing squadron.

BOY babies are more delicate than girl babies. More boys than girls die in infancy.

According to scientists of the American Institute, gathered in New York, that is the fault of the ductless glands, giving little boys a bad start even before their birth.

The pituitary gland in the head is especially important.

Prisons might be empty if we knew now what we shall know some day about these ductless glands, and the powerful products that they pour into the stream of life.

Some of these glands, necessary to the proper development of the female baby, are useless, or positively harmful, to the infant boy. No use in complaining. Nature is partial to girls, wisely, for they create the race.

The health of men in our army is better than it has ever been, and the suicide rate is highest in ten years. Bootlegging explains that.

Ambassador Morrow's mother-in-law, past 80, went flying with Lindbergh. Mrs. Georgina Collett, who says she has lived so long because she lives in California, went flying with Chuck Dowling, a good pilot, in a monocoupe. She says, "The airplane is not so wonderful, not more wonderful than railroads"—of which she also saw the beginning.

• • •

PROFESSOR COLEMAN of the University of Toronto says another ice age is coming in 100,000 years, and an ice age, left to itself, might be a serious matter. Montreal, where the professor made his announcement, was once covered by a field of ice 5,000 feet thick. No real estate boom could survive that.

But the ice will not have its own way when next it comes sliding and freezing over this earth. When you consider what men have accomplished in the 12,000 years that separate us from the stone age, when flints, bows and arrows were the only tools, you can easily believe that in 100,000 years more men will know how to deal with any ice age.

Heat, tapped in the earth's interior, or surplus heat transported from the equator, will attend to the ice problem. In 100,000 years men will control this earth.

THE Macedonians say, "The Bulgarians are taking from us all the liberty that we won by hard fighting from the Turks." And the powers are worried by bloody Balkan feuds of the old kind.

France and Britain have ordered the fighters to stop fighting, presumably in the name of the League of nations.

The world will watch the result. Michailoff, leader of the insurgent Macedonians, seems to be a man hard to frighten. To the Bulgarian government's threats Michailoff replies, "Any officint who signs a decree against me signs his own death warrant."

WINTER GRIPS EAST AS MERCURY DROPS

Lower Adirondacks with Two-Inch Blanket of Snow

New York City, Nov. 26 — King winter descended on New York and the Atlantic seaboard with a vengeance today and for the first time this year the metropolis shivered and buttoned its overcoat collar tighter around its neck.

While the temperature hovered well below the freezing point various frigid weather casualties in all parts of the greater city where reported and charitable institutions and slum missions here were crowded to capacity with shivering derelicts.

The cold snap was accompanied by a swift gale which came out of the northeast Sunday night and continued well into the forenoon before creeping out to sea.

Snow was reported falling heavily in upstate New York and other parts of Pennsylvania early today. Dawn found the lower Adirondacks covered with two inches of the white debris, much to the joy of the children of the mountain district, but highly undesirable to officials of the motor departments.

Rain is only needed in this vicinity because of the condition of the reservoirs, which are rapidly reaching a low water mark.

Even the most exciting love is the result of chance parties and having all the luck they could do.

ILLNESS OF KING IS MORE SERIOUS

Africa, is being constantly informed by telegraph of his father's condition. He has not been asked to change his plans.

The king was asked to keep to his bed last Wednesday when a cold he had contracted earlier in the week caused fever. Every precaution has since been taken to prevent a recurrence of his majesty's attack of pneumonia four years ago.

Fears Pneumonia

A prominent specialist, who refused to allow the use of his name because of medical traditions, said he believed that pneumonia had developed. If this is true, the specialist said, an operation might be necessary.

The specialist's statement, which was given to International News Service early in the afternoon after the 11 o'clock bulletin had been posted at Buckingham palace, follows:

"The royal physicians' statement that a variability of fever and a spread of pleurisy must be expected at this stage of the illness is all 'eye wash.' I look for the crisis within the next three or four days. It seems to be that pneumonia has intervened. If the temperature drops the patient recovers. Otherwise it probably will mean a surgical operation which is very dangerous for a man the age of King George."

By a "surgical operation" the specialist is understood to have meant a draining of the lungs.

PLANES CUT TIME 49 DAYS TO 32 HOURS

Past Records Are Delved Into by Air Transport Association

Chicago, Nov. 26—Over the route which the first transcontinental airplane took 49 days, the mail planes of today are flying between New York and the Pacific Coast in 32 hours, according to the American Air Transport Association which has been delving into the past records of cross-country flying.

In 1910, after Glen Curtiss had won a $10,000 prize for the first flight between New York and Albany, a prize of $50,000 was offered for the first flight from New York to the Pacific Coast with the stipulation that it must be completed within thirty days and during the year of 1910. But the prize was never won. However, Galbraith Rogers, started out September 17, 1911, for Los Angeles and arrived there November 5, requiring 49 days to make the flight which required 82 hours in the air. The plane was followed by a special containing repair part and mechanics were busy most of the way shaping up the fragile craft for the next hop.

The trip that Rogers took 49 days to negotiate was flown by Captain C. R. C. Collyer and Harry Tucker in October in 21 hours and 31 minutes, while Colonel Arther Goebel and Tucker flew the same plane from the Pacific to the Atlantic in 18 hours and 58 minutes. The daily air mail service between New York and Los Angeles and San Francisco requires 32 hours, and pilots and planes are changed five times, at Cleveland, Chicago, Omaha, Cheyenne and Salt Lake.

A recent check showed that the western half of the transcontinental air mail route was flown at an average speed of 102 miles an hour.

Some people are never satisfied until they find out something that makes them dissatisfied.

People are generous-minded, in the main. They can celebrate another man's greatness.

All bad company is soon very much worse.

Phrenology had some truth in it; but they tried to account for too much by it.

People who don't use big words know what they mean and revel in hearing a smart man use them.

YOUTHFUL—PRACTICAL

A sports model that shows all the new style details—dashingly youthful—practical and slender. It can be worn for immediate wear to take the place of a coat, and later for general utility wear. Choose lustrous crepe satin, heavy flat silk crepe, canton-faille crepe, velvet, or sheer tweed. For the gulf devotee, patterned wool jersey in mauve tones is ultra-new and extremely flattering. Navy blue wool crepe with petit bow of bright red grosgrain ribbon at neckline, red bone buttons and red suede belt, is very girlish for classroom. The surplice effect of bodice with one-sided kilted skirt, lengthens the silhouette, making Style No. 2588 equally suitable for the woman inclined to plumpness. It's easily made! Miniature diagrams will convince you. Pattern in sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred). BURNED TO DEATH

Wealthy Chicago Manufacturer Working in Garage as Gas Explodes

Chicago, Nov. 26—Joseph J. Siddall, wealthy manufacturer, was burned to death, and damage estimated at $150,000 was occasioned in the home of Laurence H. Armour, in two fires along the gold coast north of Chicago today.

Siddall's death resulted from an explosion in the garage in the rear of his home in Glencoe. He had been having motor trouble and was leaning over the engine with a lighted cigar in his mouth. A spark is believed to have fallen in the carburetor, which was leaking.

Meditations OF A Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

HOLD IT!

"HOLD IT!"

When the motion picture director shouts that little command through the megaphone, he says a Carnegie Library-full! And, incidentally, he sets the screen star the hardest task of her life.

It's easy enough to catch the expression—love, hate, fear, hauteur. But to HOLD it until the camera stops clicking — that's something else again!

That's the real test of the actress—and all the rest of us. And it applies to every mortal thing in life. Whether it's a job, a husband, a wife, fame, beauty, money or love!

Fame and popularity are sometimes won, overnight, by a simple twist of the wrist of fate—or of the publicity man. A flash of genius, a brand-new idea, a clever stunt, a stroke of luck, a brilliant piece of press-agenting—and there you are, right on the MAP! But where are you tomorrow?

It's easy enough to catch the public eye—but holding the public attention for more than a fleeting moment is the Herculean feat, in these days. Catching on is only the first step—it's holding on that counts!

And it's the same with beauty. Some of us are born beautiful and some of us achieve beauty; all of us are born young and most of us are born healthy. Yet, if you want to hold youth and beauty to the end, you've got to WORK at it, like Fannie Ward and Mary Pickford—or else die young.

And there's money. Any financier will tell you that while it may be hard to make money and harder still to save it, the most colossal misdemeanor of all is to hold ONTO your money, after you've got it.

The whole world is hanging around eagerly waiting to take it away from you, or to show you how to spend it or to "invest" it or to gamble it away. You can make a million in a day—but it takes eternal vigilance to KEEP it!

And love! We all get our little slice off the loaf of love, sooner or later. Everybody is loved, sometime, somewhere, somehow, by somebody. But to HOLD love—the glamorous, intangible elusive fairy gift—that is the feat magnificent, which requires skill, finesse, self-control, self-sacrifice, and superhuman patience.

STAYING POWER! That is the one great vital quality in everything from human nature to bridges—from politics to face powder!

Whether it's love, power, happiness or fortune, those who can HOLD it, are the conquerors of life. "Hold it!" is the secret password in success!

COUPLE KILLED WHILE ON ERRAND OF MERCY

Columbus, Nov. 26—Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Thompson of Columbus, are dead here today, victims of an errand of mercy.

The couple was driving out into the country yesterday with provisions for an impoverished family when their automobile was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train at a crossing near here.

Both were instantly killed and the automobile demolished.

How perfectly easy it is to detect flattery when it is directed toward someone else.

against him by a special grand jury called shortly after the killing last May. Johnson claims that Koon had no intent to rob Mr. Foos until he saw a wallet on a couch. This, Johnson alleges, was after the struggle between Foos and Koon, in which the aged man and Mrs. Foos were knocked unconscious.

When Koon was captured about an hour after the attack on Foos he was found to have nearly $700 in cash in his pocket. The money, according to his confession, was taken from a wallet found on a couch in the Foos home.

When the court will return its verdict on the appeal is not known. Usually the court does not express its official opinion until a week or more after an appeal case has been heard.

THANKSGIVING

NEXT Friday the gentry who made merry over the gladsome Thanksgiving day will feel about like this poor chap looks now, and of eye and to all appearances low in spirit The very name of turkey will have lost its musical charm and those who today know they can sure get away with at least a half dozen Thanksgivings, pies and fruit cake or two will feel none too kindly towards the good folk who picked out Plymouth Rock for a landing place To she who guards the destiny of the family, barque it's going to be a busy week to the one who plans to journey afar from the home fires a fine holiday and to the tired business girl a day when the alarm clock can ring its fool head off a day when there'll be no collars and cuffs to launder and adjust no meals to do and she can take a fling at being a lady of leisure

HIGH LIVER

RECENTLY dined where the piece de resistance of the dinner was veal liver cut thin cooked to a crisp and you may believe me or no It was good It was a public feed shop and being a customer in good standing and on speaking terms with the proprietors I inquired the price of liver on the block "Sixty cents a pound" quoth my informant After the table full of customers had recovered from the shock the I remember when chorus got going There were those who remembered when if the butcher felt particularly big hearted got toted home an extra package with your steak he had dumbed you a least a pound of liver just because no one ever thought of charging for it Sometime remembered when were careful not to let it get out in the neighborhood that the evening meal consisted of liver and onions and who do not remember the humiliation suffered if callers came before the odor of this delectable combination had been shooed out of the house I regretted muchly during the remainder of the evening that there wasn't some way I might mention the fact that I had dined on 60 cent veal liver without sounding boastful but I just couldn't get down to bring ensuit about the affair

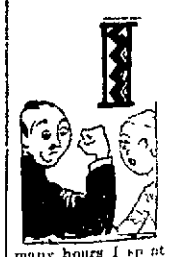
If I Were A Man

BY JILL



I WOULDN'T be a health nut Or if I were, I'd keep the bad news to myself I wouldn't go around talking about the cold shower I took every morning or asking people to feel my muscles or telling how many hours I spent in the gym each day I wouldn't make myself conspicuous by parading around in the dead of Winter without an overcoat just to show how fit I was I wouldn't insist on freezing everybody else to death by keeping the windows wide open in the office, and I wouldn't sympathize with people who had a headache or indigestion or lumbago by telling them they ought to walk five miles each day like I do and they'd be feeling fine Red blood and cold showers and electric horses are all right in their way, but why talk about them all the time? A girl likes a husky well built man, but she likes to think he got that way naturally His one thing to be healthy and another to be continually rubbing it in

If I Were A Girl

BY JACK

I WOULDN'T use my sex in business I'd remember an office isn't an appropriate background for sex appeal, and I wouldn't dress for the sole purpose of calling attention to my charms I wouldn't flirt with the Boss and cast sheep's eyes at every man who came into the place And if the Boss smiled at me, I wouldn't take for granted he was in love with me and immediately begin picturing myself in the thrilling role of a home-wrecker I wouldn't try to get away with murder by coming in late taking three hours for lunch and then airily explaining everything away with a coquettish smile and some high powered oglng I wouldn't let my feelings get hurt when the Boss corrected me for a mistake and treat the office to an exhibition of hysterics In fact, if I were a girl I'd think it yellow to trade on my sex I'd play the business game straight—or not at all!

Daphne

An Unusual Romance of Love and Sacrifice

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

...TER TWENTY-FIVE

...E thought, "I won't run ...ny man—not even Ralph! ...ts to go to art balls with ... and like to me, let him! I care?" And with her door ... her head under the covers ... good cry and felt better.

...es were only a little red ... morning, and long before ...ley came to remind her it ... time she had thought of a ... excuses for him, and ...orrying.

...ardley was a much better ...n Flora. Daphne told her ...story over their strawberry ...sodas and lettuce sand... ...d when Miss Yardley ...d said, "Aren't you the lucky ...ving two wonderful friends ...deKevitt and Mr. Winters!" ...opular and beloved, and oh, ...for poor Miss Yardley, who ...y men friends at all.

...re she thought about it the ... wanted Allan Winters and ... Yardley who had such ...othes and pretty manners. ...'t so awfully homely once ...used to her stick-out teeth ...sighted eyes behind the dark-rimmed glasses, to like each other. Noboy could call Miss Yardley pretty, but she did look stylish when she was all dressed up . . . .

"Mr. Winters?" Daphne's voice was a little breathless when she finally summoned courage to call Allan. "This is—Daphne."

"Yes?" He seemed so cold and business-like over the telephone that she hardly knew how to go on.

"I'm sorry that Ralph isn't in," he was saying. "Ill have him call you later."

"But it was you I wanted to talk to! I thought . . . we had such a wonderful day, Sunday . . . perhaps we could . . . perhaps you'd like to . . . . to come up to a friend's apartment with me, and have dinner. It would be rather fun, cooking and everything. She's an awfully nice girl . . . I know Ralph is to busy right now, but I thought that maybe you—"

"I'm afraid I'm too busy too, Daphne. We're doing some extra work here in the office. Thanks just the same. It was nice of you to think of me."

He was cordial enough, and she knew there was extra work going on in Ralph's office, there was no real reason for being hurt at his refusal. But she was hurt. She had counted on him so much, had been so sure of his friendship.

With Ralph it was different. Ralph was popular, and rushed, Ralph was a man of affairs. You couldn't expect too much of Ralph. Even if he did love you, he had other friends, other interests. You have to put up with things, and wait . . . wait for the day when his love for you should sweep all the other things aside. . . .

You expected Ralph to fail you some times, you knew there would be pain and disappointment. . . . Love wasn't all happiness except in novels. . . .

But Allan . . . "good old Al," as Ralph called him . . . it did hurt hideously, when he failed. . . .

She tried once more, the following Thursday, and once again when he came into Greeley's office on business a few days later. But after seeing him, and talking with him there was no mistaking it. He had changed, he didn't want her friendship. He took the cager hand she held out, and dropped it quickly as if it had been a hot potato. He looked at his feet, at the English sporting prints on the walls, at the filing cabinet, and Mr. Greely's biz, empty desk, at everything but Daphne. He was embarrassed and restless, anxious to get away. "Well it was nice to see you again, Miss Haines." (Miss Haines) . . . after he'd called her Daphne all day in Bolinas) . . . "Sorry Mr. Greely isn't in. I'll have to be getting back to the office . . . Goodbye".

She watched his slight, shock-headed figure slip through the door, waited to hear the outer door close. Then she went angrily back to her work.

After that her manner with Miss Yardley was more diffident. She told her Allan Winters had changed—or something—since Sunday—anyway he wouldn't do at all.

"Isn't that just my luck!" Miss Yardley lamented good naturedly. "That's the way with the men. You can't count on them. Let's you and I join a gym class at the Y—what do you say?"

But Daphne didn't want to. Allan's behavior hurt cut her more deeply than even the shrewd Miss Yardley knew. He had seemed so kind and dependable . . . so eager to be friends. . . . She had grown so fond of him in that one little day, believed in him so. . . . Losing him was like discovering there was no Santa Claus when she was five. It knocked her faith in everything . . . and everybody.

September passed, the leaves fell. There was the feeling of autumn in the air, of sadness, and loneliness. Ralph came so seldom.

"It isn't that I don't want to see you often, honey girl . . . kiss me? You do love me a little, don't you? You better! If I ever get out of this mess I'm in I'll make it up to you—honest I will!" he promised, holding her close, kissing her lowered eyelids.

And Daphne, thrilling to his words, forgave him for the broken engagements, the empty evenings. Forgave him for everything, for everything he did, and everything he failed to do . . . she didn't care, she'd wait . . . he wouldn't be rushed and worried forever.

"I wish I knew more about business," she thought, helplessly. "It's all over my head—all the stocks and things Ralph is fussing about, and Mr. Greely complaining . . . he oughtn't to talk to Ralph the way he does—Ralph knows what he's doing!"

Her loyalty was torn two ways . . . why couldn't they get along? But apparently they couldn't any more. Each day brought bitterness and bickering. Ralph was in and out of the office, flushed and angry, arguing with the old man. And Mr. Greely, grayer and gruffer than ever, snarled and cursed, and pounded the desk—"That damn fool here again? My Lord, am I to wet nurse him forever? Well—tell him to come in, damn it, come in!"

It was a fight about money, of course. Men were always fighting about money. "I wish there wasn't any money in the world!" she told Ralph after one of the stormy sessions. "It makes all the unhappiness there is. My father loved money so much that he let Mother kill herself with overwork, to save it, and now my stepmother is spending it, and he's killing himself with worry . . . oh, Ralph, it isn't worth it. If Mr. Greely won't let you have more capital just do without it—what does it matter? It can't be worth all the fights—".

"Pull some of that argument on Greely," he said moodily. "Make him see that he's going to drive me to drink or suicide—or worse—if he don't loosen up . . . it's so damned unfair—to think my own father would put me in this position—make me dependent upon Greely for what's rightfully mine—Mine! Well, I won't stand it much longer. I'll hire the best attorneys in this town—I'll—"

"But John Greely is supposed to be the best there is—"

"Yeh—and the crookedest! . . . Another thing, he's getting childish, Daphne. I've got chances to make real money now—I'll be a millionaire in four months if I didn't have him on my neck. He'd see it if he were clearer mentally — he's getting senile—"

"Senile! Why Ralph he isn't—he's the keenest, quickest person I ever knew! He has a memory like a card index—you're wrong if you think—"

She stopped suddenly, frozen with terror. Old Mr. Greely had opened the door of his private office. He stood there, towering above them, looking at least 10 feet high.

"If you have business to discuss you will discuss it with me, not my secretary, McKevitt!"

His voice was ominously quiet. He motioned Ralph to enter, with formal politeness.

The door closed behind them

FINE FOR CHILDREN

Give them a good start in life, with happy smiles and healthy little bodies. Children need a mild corrective occasionally to regulate stomach and bowels. Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets are a safe vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. They tone up and regulate the eliminative tract. Not a nasty cathartic or a habit-forming medicine, but a safe pleasant remedy for constipation, sour stomach, torpid liver, bad breath, and similar disorders. Dr. Edwards, a widely known family physician of Ohio, prescribed these tablets for many years in his own practice. Children from six years up are greatly helped by them and like to take them. Recognized by their olive color, Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets overcome those irritable spells that many children are subject to. Keep their bodies in active healthy condition, skin clear and eyes bright with the light of perfect health. 15c, 30c and 60c sizes.—Adv.

Mothers—Try Mild Children's Musterole

Of course, you know good old Musterole; how quickly, how easily it relieves chest colds, sore throat, rheumatic and neuralgic pain, sore joints and muscles, stiff neck and lumbago.

We also want you to know CHILDREN'S MUSTEROLE—Musterole in milder form. Unexcelled for relief of croupy coughs and colds; it penetrates, soothes and relieves without the blister of the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Keep a jar handy. It comes ready to apply instantly without fuss or bother.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS MEMBERS ARE GUESTS

Members of Pauline Linzo's Sunday School class of Epworth M. E. church were entertained Friday night at the home of Miss Josephine Zeisler, 506 South Main st. Following the devotionals a short business session and program were held. Misses Dorothy Pace and Virginia Grover entertained with a piano duet and Miss Grace Wise gave a reading. A social hour and refreshments were enjoyed.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD B. LEWIS

YESTERDAY was Sunday, and cold and clear when I let Jubilee down by the rope in the well, and there was plenty of snow on the ground. But many is better than ice water when you are going to down into it with your coat and hat all unbuttoned up, but when I was letting Jubilee down on a cold morning he don't want to knock off that. He hates it as much as the weather is, and a boy, and would let the down into a cheap hunk.

When I had got on my bathing suit, shoes and stockings I went in by parlor, saw if the quarter my grandfather gave me for letting him beat me at checkers was there, as if I had dreamed it. It was there, carried out the ashes and milked the cows and told the bunch to wait for me and went to feel my face and see if I could sidetrack some pancakes for Jubilee. Then I got up from the table and was waiting for my aunt to scrub my face off like she does every Sunday morning, but she said she had a pain in her hand; and my grandfather said at her age it was a wonder she hadn't had rheumatism before this, and she froze him with a look. Then she said she thought I better wash myself this morning, and to be sure and wash myself like she did.

So I got the wash basin full of hot water and got wash rag and rubbed a lot of soap on it, and then I took hold of my hair with my left hand and lifted up till I stood on my tiptoes and then I scrubbed my face like my mother does a pair of anything she has on a washboard, and I heard someone snicker and opened one eye and the whole family was standing in the door watching me, and then some soap got into that eye and I had to shut it, so then I let go of my hair and grabbed my ears one at a time and almost twisted them off whilst I washed my neck, and when I wrenched the soap off my eyes and out of my ears the whole family was laughing and my grandfather was pounding the floor with his cane and my aunt looked like if she bit anyone they would get hydrophobia. I thought it was time for me to skin out, and I skun.

Today was Monday and I had kept my quarter, which I spent on Youniss and Maggie and Feebie for candy. Feebie divided it and didn't think to give me any, and when Youniss offered me some of her's I said I didn't like candy, and me and Jubilee went along whistling whilst they et it. I'll show Feebie she can't put anything over on me. If she wasn't a femail I would paint her one. I hope she marries the Last Rag of Tripe. It would serve both of them right.

One who is a poor judge of horse racing shouldn't bet other people's money on it.

Love's Awakening

THE HEART STORY OF A WOMAN'S AFFECTIONS

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge and Katherine Evolve a Scheme

EAGERLY seconded Katherine's proposal to find out some way of mixing up the supper partners at our impromptu dance instead of letting the boys choose whom they would serve.

"We can't let the arrangement really be accidental," I amended after a second's thought. "For instance we can't afford to have Princess Olina paired off with Mr. Owen."

"And Mary shouldn't have either Prince Georges or Noel," Katherine supplemented. "Let's put the names down and consider them."

"How will this arrangement do?" I asked after scanning the names. "Mary and Mr. Owen—that keeps him away from Marion and avoids friction between Prince Georges and Noel—Carolyn and Noel; Olina and Ronald, Georges and Marion."

"Have a heart, also a conscience," she exclaimed. "Let Marion and Ronald have a chance to talk to each other. He's the first admirer the child ever had, and he's such a personable, clean-cut lad that no mother in her senses ought to object to his rushing her young daughter."

"You're incurably romantic," I told her, smiling. "But I'm glad to agree with you. I was only hesitant because Lillian isn't down here herself."

"I'll stand by you if she heaps censure on your head tomorrow," she assured me.

"I'm not very fearful," I answered. "I think Lillian realizes that she's kept Marion too much to herself."

She nodded an assent, then checked off the pairing again.

"Mary and Owen, Carolyn and Noel, Olina and Georges, Marion and Ronald. Couldn't be better for your Machiavellian scheme concerning the royal pair."

I laughed a bit guiltily, for I knew that both Katherine and Lillian were mirthfully aware of my ardent desire to bring Prince Georges and Princess Olina together again, and to thwart the preposterous plan of Philip Verityen concerning the princess and his son.

"The next thing is to make it appear accidental," I said hurriedly. "I can't think of a scheme which they wouldn't suspect."

"How would it do to have four long pieces of cord," Katherine said after a second's thought. "Then we could put the girls in the living room and the boys in the library across the hall, both sets standing close to the walls, so they couldn't see each other. You and I would stand in the hall holding the ends of the strings concealed. I would go into the living room and give each girl an end of a string, and you would go into the library and give a corresponding end to a boy."

"But how in the world could we be sure that—" I began.

"That's where we'll have to watch our step, also our memories," she said. "Of course, the strings won't be of the same length and appearance, but we will make some microscopical mark on each, and remember which couple it means. That really ought not to tax our mental resources very heavily."

"I think we might manage that," I answered her mischievous grin with another, and going to the kitchen cabinet, took out a ball of cord, and a pair of scissors.

"Nothing like preparedness, eh?" Katherine commented.

"We must make this party safe for democracy," I answered, tossing the ball of cord over to her.

"And no royalty need reply, also nance Chicago," she countered with another shy grin at me, as she began measuring the cord. "But let's hurry this. I confess I have an unholy curiosity to get back into the living room and see how things are going. There's enough T N T in that room to blow up the farmhouse."

DEAN WILL SPEAK

O. S. U. Speaker To Address Morrow County Meeting

Mt. Gilead, Nov. 26—In the first of a series of institutes outnumbering any scheduled number in this county before, Dean Alfred Vivian, dean of the college of agriculture at the Ohio State University, will give two lectures at Williamsport Dec. 6 and 7.

"The Needs of Rural America," will be the subject of Dean Vivian's first talk at Williamsport. In an evening session, he has promised to deliver his famous address on "The Farmer in the Orient," showing slide pictures in connection with his talk. Other speakers who will be active in this institute are Mrs. Paul Maxwell, of Cardington, Mrs. W. S. Ferguson, of Tiro, and Horatio Merkley, of Chesterville.

FOR 35 YEARS HE HAD GAS—GONE NOW

"I suffered with indigestion and gas for 35 years. Since the first dose of Adlerika, I have not been troubled a bit."—D. Carlisle.

Just ONE spoonful Adlerika relieves gas and that bloated feeling so that you can eat and sleep well. Acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removes old waste matter you never thought was there. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. Hennes & Cooper, druggists.—Adv.

NEW BABY DISTURBS TIRED OFFICE WORKER

"When my oldest boy was just a few weeks old he was badly constipated from my milk," says a Nebraska mother. "He kept us awake so much, my husband almost slept over his desk at the office. Then my doctor got us to give Baby some Castoria and the next day he was much better. His stomach and bowels began acting perfectly and he gave us no more trouble." Avoid imitations of Castoria. The Fletcher signature marks the genuine, purely-vegetable, harmless Castoria, doctors everywhere advise for those ills of babies and children, such as colic, constipation, colds, biliousness, etc.—Adv.

Christmas Is Coming!

get ready for it the modern way!

This year you can shop sensibly and savingly—from the standpoint of time and energy as well as of economy. Select your presents through the Shop-o-scope—the Christmas Gift Suggestions Columns of our Classified Section, before you start out for the stores!

Gifts for Her

WOMEN are credited with being the discriminating shoppers. They know the vogue and they know values—so mere men, when choosing gifts for them, are often very much perplexed. The women too, in buying for each other, are more puzzled than when selecting something for a man or a child—but the solution of the question is easy now.

Our best stores, both small and large, are offering most helpful and appropriate suggestions under "Gifts for Her" in the Classified Section. The values are interesting too. Take a few minutes right now to get acquainted with this helpful Christmas service. It will save you much—in time and energy and money, too!

Gifts for the Children

WITH the wide variety of things made for children it is not hard to find something that will please them. But very often the joy the little ones get from their presents is not due so much to the price of the articles as to the sympathetic care in the choice of them.

You can get a thrill yourself by reading daily the interesting lists of toys and playthings offered under the heading "Gifts for the Children" in the Classified Section. Turn to the Shop-o-scope now and make the pleasant acquaintance of these interesting holiday columns.

NOW YOU CAN RIDE EASILY over the troubles of gift selection which once, very likely, left you too exhausted to really enjoy the festivities when they came. Every day until Christmas the Shop-o-scope makes it possible for you to settle down comfortably at home and make definite plans for every detail. Everything you need is conveniently listed in the five groups of offerings—"Gifts for Her," "Gifts for Him," "Gifts for the Children," "Gifts for the Home" and "Dinner and Decorations." Appropriate gifts are suggested; addresses at which to obtain them, are given, and the prices asked are stated plainly.

With your Christmas list and this section, a few minutes will be sufficient to plan an hour or two of definite buying in the stores. It's so easy to get the shopping done quickly and economically then! Your pleasure is shared by the store people too. They are glad to serve you quickly and courteously. Take this short cut to shopping satisfaction. Begin today by turning to these

Five Helpful Headings

Dinner and Decorations

THE overnight transformation of the house provides one of the chief thrills of Christmas for the children,—while the arrangement of the decorations and of the tree affords almost as much pleasure to the grown-ups. The Christmas dinner is another high point of the day which needs careful preparation.

You won't forget anything which will add to the festive appearance of the house or to the satisfaction of the dinner,—if you read the suggestions appearing daily until Christmas in the Classified Section, under "Dinner and Decorations." It will save you time and money too!

Gifts for Him

GIVE him a real surprise this Christmas! Maybe he does need handkerchiefs, socks, neckties and the like, but on this day of all days why not make it something different. Every day a number of our leading merchants are offering suggestions along this line under "Gifts for Him" in the Classified Section.

You can't read far without discovering a number of things that any man can use—and would like to have. Don't go down town just "to look." Make your choice from among the suggestions under this heading. Then you can do the actual buying very quickly and easily, and with less money than you had expected to need.

Gifts for the Home

YOU can't make a mistake in choosing a gift which adds something worth while to the comfort or convenience of a home—whether it be a friend's or your own. And you will find a great many very suitable things listed under "Gifts for the Home" in the Classified Section,—at all prices, too.

Christmas is a home festival, and experts in the art of making home attractive are offering suggestions every day in this column of the Shop-o-scope. You can choose from them easily and add permanent pleasure to the daily life of a family, as well as provide a pleasant surprise for each member of it on Christmas Day.

CARDINGTON BOY LOSES RIGHT EYE

Removed at Local Hospital Following Air-Gun Accident

Robert Ullom, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Ullom, of Cardington, underwent an operation for removal of his right eye this morning at City hospital. The eye was injured by shot from the air gun of a playmate. The two children were playing near the Ullom home Friday when the accident occurred.

Funeral for Wife of Cardington Pastor Held Today

Cardington, Nov. 26—Funeral services for Mrs. Frank Simpson House, wife of the Nazarene pastor here, were held this afternoon in the local Nazarene church. She died Saturday following an illness of several months. Besides her husband she is survived by three daughters, Mrs. E. S. Pennell, of Cardington, Mrs. Zella Young, of Newark, and Mrs. Dr. Young, of Los Angeles, and one son, M. O. Griffith, of Newark. She was 80 years of age.

Lifeboats round English shores were launched in 262 occasions last year, and saved, or helped to save, twenty-three vessels. Altogether, the crews of the National Lifeboat Institution have saved 61,769 lives since the foundation of the institution 101 years ago.

Children under ten years old receive less use of medical facilities than at any later time in life, according to a survey in rural Ohio.

THANKSGIVING DAY MESSAGE IS GIVEN

Coolidge Broadcasts Annual Proclamation Over National Network of Stations

Washington, Nov. 26—A far-flung radio hookup was assembled last night for President Coolidge to read his Thanksgiving day proclamation to the American people.

Recognizing the good things that have come to citizens of the United States in the last year, the president, in his proclamation, which was published last month, voiced thanks "for the blessings which the giver of all good and perfect gifts has bestowed upon us."

The president had the microphone installed in his study so it was unnecessary for him to leave the White House to participate in the Thanksgiving program. Mr. Coolidge had set 9 o'clock as the hour at which he agreed to take part in the program by reading his proclamation.

The proclamation declared that the nation as a whole had been free of pestilence and disaster and had been directed in the way of national prosperity.

"Our fields have been abundantly productive; our industries have flourished; our commerce has increased; wages have been lucrative;" it continued, "and contentment has followed the undisturbed pursuit of honest toil."

In the spiritual side of life, as well as in material things, the proclamation also noted a growth and expansion.

"We have enlarged our charities and our missions," it said. "We have been imbued with high ideals which have operated for the benefit of the world and the promotion of the brotherhood of man through peace and good will."

The radio program was arranged for last night instead of later in the week because Mr. Coolidge is to leave Washington to pass a Thanksgiving week-end vacation in the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia.

The president, who is to be accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, and a small party is to have a quiet week-end in the Old Dominion State except for Thanksgiving day itself, when a rather full program has been arranged for him.

On the holiday, Mr. Coolidge tentatively has agreed to attend a union church service at the Baptist church in Charlottesville, and has accepted an invitation for luncheon with Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia, to which the Governors of North Carolina and Virginia also have been invited.

In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge hope to attend the Virginia-North Carolina football game at Charlottesville, but their presence there depends on the weather. At any rate, the president is to pass not more than 15 minutes at the game.

If the opportunity presents itself, Mr. Coolidge may do a little clay pigeon shooting for which he developed a fondness when on his summer vacation in Wisconsin. Otherwise, his week-end in Virginia is to be devoted chiefly to quiet and rest.

COAL DEALER DIES

Columbus, Nov. 26—Funeral services were being completed here today for John E. Bull, 70, formerly a dealer for the Sunday Creek Coal Co., who died late Saturday at Washington, D. C. LOCAL HUNTERS BAG DEER IN EXPEDITION

C. H. Isaly and M. L. McDaniel Return from Canadian Trip

Charles H. Isaly and M. L. McDaniel have returned to the city from an 18 days' hunting trip through New Brunswick, Canada. They were accompanied by John Silckney, Prospect, and John Brickey and Chester Isaly, Youngstown. All five of the men shot their limit of two deer and the two local men expect their trophies to arrive here some time today.

Starting from Renous, New Brunswick, the party struck into the wilderness, accompanied by three guides. They traveled out into the big woods on foot and returned by canoe. They spent 14 days in the woods.

Although the party jumped moose twice, none succeeded in getting a shot. The party saw no bear.

Some talk so much that it can't all be truth.

LA RUE ELEVEN DEFEATED BY URBANA HIGH, 50 TO 0

Failing to halt the crushing offense of the Urbana high school eleven, LaRue high gridders were given their worst defeat of the season Friday when they lost, 50 to 0.

Urbana scored in every quarter of the game and in the final period chalked up 25 points. The Marion county team failed to make a first down and only gained 11 yards.

CONDITION UNIMPROVED

The condition of Mrs. Ann Caskey, who was injured in a fall last week at the home of her son, Delphos Caskey, south of Denmark, is reported unimproved. Mrs. Caskey, a resident of Claridon, is still at her son's home.

Every man who is honest and believes in fair play will do his share of the work.

Irritable because of a cold

Dark unhappiness at home, sharp discord at the office—how frequently caused by those flashes of bad temper which come with colds. Yet how needless!

Millions of people now know the remedy. The minute they have that vague feeling of ill-health; or chilliness, sneezing, headache, or throat tickle; they take GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Three-quarters of the country's colds, we believe, are treated this way.

Taken soon enough, GROVE'S BROMO QUININE tablets with their famed tonic and laxative benefits may help you side-step the cold entirely. But soon or late, they help you throw off the cold quickly and fortify the system against grip and influenza . . . . There is an obvious reason for the outstanding and acknowledged leadership of GROVE'S BROMO QUININE: Results. That's why it is important to emphasize GROVE'S when asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Two Men Injured In Automobile Accidents Over Week-End

BIG FOUR EMPLOYE STRUCK AT KENTON

W. H. Lytle, 42, of Springfield, in McKitrick Hospital

VIRGIL TILTON HURT

Upper Sandusky Man Taken to Tiffin Hospital Following Accident

W. H. Lytle, 42, of Springfield, is in McKitrick hospital, Kenton, and Virgil Tilton, 45, Upper Sandusky, is in Benner hospital, Tiffin, suffering from injuries sustained in automobile accidents early today and Sunday morning. Both men, according to hospital authorities, will recover.

Mr. Lytle, who is supervisor of buildings and bridges for the Big Four railroad, had a narrow escape from death when his machine was struck by an Ohio Central yard engine at the Detroit Street grade crossing in Kenton about 3 o'clock this morning. The car, with Mr. Lytle inside, was dragged about 20 feet down the right-of-way before the train could be stopped.

Mr. Lytle sustained cuts and bruises about his head and body and is suffering from loss of blood resulting from the severance of an artery in his right side. He was enroute to Carey from Springfield when the accident occurred.

Mr. Tilton sustained cuts and gashes on his head and his right arm was broken in several places when the machine in which he was riding with Harold Maffett, also of Upper Sandusky, skidded on the Republic road, two miles north of Tiffin, about 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The men were rounding a sharp curve when the machine ran into the ditch. Mr. Maffett was not injured.

It is probable Mr. Tilton will be removed to his home 135 North Seventh st., late today.

ILLNESS FATAL

Private Funeral Services Held Today For Carey Resident

Carey, Nov. 26—Private funeral services were held this afternoon for Mrs. Sherman Yingling, who died Saturday morning at her home, Dow st., following a week's illness of paralysis. Interment was made in Spring Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Yingling was born Aug. 2, 1878, in Union City, Ind., the daughter of Joseph and Caroline Simonis. She was married in 1900 to Sherman Yingling, who survives with the following children: Robert, at home, William, of Akron, Gladys of Carey, and Pauline, of Lancaster. She also is survived by her mother, who makes her home at the Yingling residence.

Mrs. Yingling was a member of the Maccabee and Moosehart legion.

ENTRIES MADE IN MT. GILEAD SUITS

New Parties Defendant Named; Motion for New Trial Overruled

Mt. Gilead, Nov. 26—Leave to name new parties defendant has been granted in the suit of Frank H. King against Louis Raymond Hassell and others, for foreclosure. Leave for the new parties to file an answer was given and the Marengo bank filed its answer and cross petition. The bank sets up claims and asks that its interests be protected. C. H. Wood is the attorney for the answering defendant.

A motion for new trial has been overruled in the suit of F. B. Van Sickle against B. L. Shoemaker, and the $75 verdict of the jury was affirmed by Judge W. P. Vaughan, Saturday. This action was an appeal from the justice of peace court.

Sale, deed, and distribution has been ordered in the action of the Mt. Gilead National bank against Edwin A. Rule and Blanche Rule, for foreclosure.

A decree of foreclosure has been made in the suit of Marguerite L. Long against Lena Hodge and others. C. C. Kirkpatrick, Frank Align, and W. A. Levering were appointed commissioners.

SEEK MAN

Hadley Young Attempts To Kill Wife Is Charge

Marysville, Nov. 26 — Hadley Young is being sought by authorities since his flight from here Saturday morning, after an alleged attempt to kill his wife, Mrs. Ruth Young, who, since leaving her husband, has been making her home with her sister, Mrs. Eva Milliner, Columbus.

Mrs. Young came here Saturday morning, accompanied by her sister, for the purpose of securing a divorce from Young, on the grounds of gross neglect of duty. She had filed a suit previous to this one, but later, withdrew it. The couple had been having domestic trouble for some time.

Mrs. Young claims that as she and her sister approached the corner of Oak and Fifth sts., Mr. Young grabbed her and pulled out a revolver and said he was going to kill her and then end his own life. Young is said to have pulled the trigger of the weapon three or four times but the gun failed to discharge.

Mrs. Ballinger ran to the Farmers' Feed & Implement Co.'s establishment, in the next block, and phoned the police. Mrs. Young broke loose from her husband and also fled.

She was later granted a decree and restored to the name of a former husband, Ed. Dillon.

POWER LINE WILL PASS NEAR TIRO

Ohio Power Company To Erect Towers Through Crawford County

Bucyrus, Nov. 26—The new 165,000 volt power line which the Ohio Power Co. is planning to erect from Philo in Muskingum county to Fostoria in Seneca county, a distance of 125 miles, will pass through Crawford county, according to announcements made recently. The new line, which was surveyed by airplane last summer, will pass within a few rods of Tiro, two miles south of New Washington, and one fourth mile north of Chatfield, and will be carried on a series of steel towers 95 feet high and 22 feet square on the bottom. Current carried by the line will be produced at the company's $54,000,000 power plant at Philo.

W. A. High, New Washington, and W. W. Davis, of Tiro, are working with representatives of the company in perfecting local arrangements.

CONDUCT RITES FOR HERMAN HUNE

Funeral of Hardin County Youth Held Today at Kenton

Kenton, Nov. 26—Funeral services for Herman Hune, 15, son of Allen Hune, farmer residing six miles south of here on the Bellefontaine pk., who was accidentally shot and killed late Saturday afternoon by his 12-year-old brother, Charles, as the two were playing in the yard of their home, were conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Brindley mortuary.

According to information the two had hunted for a brief time with a 22-calibre rifle and upon returning Charles secured the 12-gauge shotgun which they did not know was loaded. As they were playing about the yard, Herman stepped in front of his brother just as the shotgun accidentally discharged, the entire load entering the body directly below the heart.

The boy is survived by his father and brother, the mother having died last February. Hardin County Coroner H. G. Schutte pronounced a verdict of accidental death.

WED IN LIMA

Miss Edith Witten and Dr. John Winterman United

Galion, Nov. 26—Of unusual interest to Galionites was the marriage ceremony solemnized at Christ Episcopal church, Lima, Saturday in which Edith Witten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Witten, of that city, and Dr. John Moore Winterman, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Winterman, Harding Way West, this city were the principles. The Rev. A. I. E. Boss formerly of Grace church, this city and now rector of St. James, Columbus, assisted the Rev. Victor Smith at the service.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Norvil hotel and immediately after Dr. and Mrs. Winterman left for a wedding trip to New York and upon their return will live at 1304 West Third st., Columbus, where Dr. Winterman has his office at 1235 West Broad st.

PRESENT PROGRAM

Galion Hostess Entertains Literary Group Members

Galion, Nov. 26—Miss Ruth Quigle was hostess to members of St. Thoresa literary society at her home, North Market st., Friday night, when an interesting meeting was held. Miss Laura Schuler, president, introduced the program participants. Miss Martha Fabian gave an interesting paper, "Switzerland," and Mrs. A. T. Flannery gave a biography of Cardinal Newman. The Cardinal's greatest musical work, the hymn, "Lead Kindly Light," was sung by Mrs. G. T. Frederick at the conclusion of the paper.

Mary Catharine Erfurt played a piano number "Woodland Echoes" as the closing number and in the contests which followed Theresa Schnaus, Mary Graham, Anna Lisse and Martha Fabian won the awards.

IS HOSTESS

Galion Club Members Discuss Opera at Meeting

Galion, Nov. 26—Fortnightly club members met at the home of Mrs. W. V. Goshorn, Harding Way west, this afternoon, and in response to roll call answered the question, "Why I Like Opera." The club's study this year is divided between opera and a definited course in English and the program is proving of unusual interest and benefit.

Mrs. R. C. Bratten discussed the Verdi opera "Rigoletto," and Mrs. Earl B. Padgett's paper was a description of Offenbach's work "Tales of Hoffman." Mrs. John C. Shumaker, president, was in charge of the business session of the meeting.

BEGINS TESTS

Hardin County Farmer Seeks to Establish New Record

Kenton, Nov. 26—Official government tests of the 10-acre corn plots set out this year by Ira Marshall, world's corn growing champion, and his daughter, Miss Opal, and son, Glenn, in an effort to establish new corn production records, have been started on the Marshall farm in Washington township.

Ira Marshall is at present the world's champion corn grower, having achieved this distinction for a number of years. Last season his son was a close runner-up for the title. Marshall's yield last year was 157.77 bushels to the acre on a 10-acre plot, while the year previous it totalled 168 and a fraction bushels to the acre.

Galion Workshop Players Present One-Act Drama

Galion, Nov. 26—One of the most effective and finished dramatic productions ever staged in Galion was given yesterday afternoon at the fourth Sunday afternoon program of the winter series when the Drama Workship Players presented the one-act drama, "The Valiant," by Holworthy Hall and Robert Middlemass.

The play strikes a melancholy note in the beginning, telling the story of the noble sacrifice of a convict to keep his family from disgrace and ends with the dramatic death walk.

Plays Title Role

Robert Phipps appearing in the title role added another part to his long list of successes and proved to be one of the most adept of the organization at handling a heavy role. Gerald Everly gave an unusual characterization of the prison guards and the Rev. Philip E. Auer, of Peace Lutheran church making his first appearance as guest player, won especial commendation for his interpretation of the prison chaplain. Robert Yochum played the part of the jailer and Virginia Fontance Phipps gave an artistic performance in the whimsical part of Josephine Paris.

Mrs. Loren E. Beck directed the play, Charles Coyle and Floyd Myers arranged the setting and Miss Lois Beck was stage assistant. Many members of Little theatre groups from surrounding cities were interested attendants at the club's opening production. The next play a comedy, "Love in a Mist," will be given Dec. 6.

Musical Numbers

Preceding the play, Marson Helmer played two organ numbers and Miss Miriam Durtch, pianist and Miss Catherine Thayer, organist, played the intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Miss Hazel Garverick, a pupil of Mrs. Donald Townsend sang "Life and Death," by F. Coleridge Taylor, and Mrs. Townsend and Miss Lois Beck sang the duet, "Passage Birds Farewell," by Hildach, with organ accompaniment by Mrs. R. O. Morgan.

An effective reading, "The Last Hymn" by Herbert William was given by Miss Doris J. Cook and Theodore Schaefer played the piano accompaniment.

HARDING SQUAD IS QUESTION MARK AS PRACTICE STARTS

Fans Hope for Red and Black To Win N. C. O. Title

BY KARL R. M'ELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

WITH only a few football clashes of note looming on the football horizon, the interest of Marion sport fans is turning to the winter's outstanding field of indoor athletic endeavor—basketball.

Fluted over Harding high's successful conquest of the North Central Ohio league football pennant, fans here are looking over the basketball material in hopes that the cage trophy may be added to the Red and Black's collection of athletic honors this season.

From the high school gym comes various rumors testifying to the greatness and also to the lack of cage material. The cry of lack of football talent was raised when the grid season opened here. This did not block Harding's pennant chances and the school won its first league title.

Will the same thing hold true in basketball this year? That is the question that is going the rounds before the season opens. Coach Compton has made his first cut and the squad numbers about 40 players. He announced that 25 men will compose the team throughout the season.

It is considered likely that Harding will play the first couple of games without a letterman in its lineup. McAniuch is still unable to carry on on account of injuries sustained in football. Coach Compton has repetedly told the writer that his squad will be exceptionally weak. Plenty of short light men will be available, he said, and one of his biggest problems will be in developing a center.

The Red and Black schedule is not what one would class as being exceptionally hard. From present indications Lima Central will be one of the strongest teams scheduled here. Columbus West will open the high school season here. Five league games, two with Delaware and the annual alumni clash, complete the Red and Black schedule to date. Two weeks of the schedule are still open. It is likely that some tough teams will be added to the schedule at that time.

LACKS POWER

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 26—Coach Gil Dobie had ample grounds for pessimism today as he whipped his Cornell team into shape for the Turkey day game with Penn. The Ithacans' rushing attack has been unusually weak this season and Doble is trying numerous combinations in an effort to develop more power.

START DRIVE

New York, Nov. 26—Columbia today started its final drive for the Syracuse contest here on Thanksgiving day. The Lions have yet to win a major triumph this season and are working like Trojans to duplicate their victory of last season at the expense of the orange.

Football Season Closes for Ohio College Teams

COLUMBUS, Nov. 26—Two score Ohio college football teams, settled back into the daily routine of classes and studying today following the official closing of the 1928 gridiron season in three conferences of the state, last Saturday.

Saturday's games brought to an end one of the most colorful grid seasons in the state for several years which was marked by many hard-fought contests and startling upsets throughout.

"Old man upset" gave a mighty kick to the proverbial dope-bucket as the season halted Saturday. With every dopester in the state giving Ohio Wesleyan an edge over the Wittenberg eleven in the final match of the Buckeye Intercollegiate Athletic association, the Lutherans figured in one of the most surprising upsets of the season by emerging from the game one point in the lead of the Bishops. The Methodists fell before the underrated Lutheran aggregation after passing through a brilliant season in which they defeated Michigan, Syracuse and four other Buckeye association teams.

As a result of the Lutheran victory, Ohio Wesleyan and Wittenberg are sharing honors at the top of the Buckeye conference, each with a record of four victories and one defeat. Miami, by virtue of her two victories is in second position with Denison and Ohio university tied for third and Cincinnati, fourth after passing through the season without a victory.

Although her team is considered much weaker than holders of other prominent positions in the Ohio conference, Heidelberg with five victories and no defeats, is sitting alone on the top rung of the conference ladder. Dayton gridders who won three games in the conference is second and the St. Xavier team which played but one game in the circuit and resulted favorably to the Musketeers, is the holder of third place. Ohio Wesleyan with six victories and one defeat takes the fourth position below her much weaker conference mates.

With her record marred only by a single tie game, Bowling Green college ended her season Saturday the winner of the Northwestern Ohio conference. Defiance broke into second place by winning over Bluffton in the final game. The defeat threw Bluffton into a tie with Toledo for third place. Findlay, winning one and losing three during the season ended in the cellar berth.

The season just ended was one of great importance to the Ilram football team which broke a losing streak of six years when it won over the Otterbein eleven in the latter days of October. It won a second game a week later at the expense of the Baldwin-Wallace squad.

BY JOHN W. HEISMAN

IN 1908 Michigan and Syracuse met in one of the toughest football battles of the year. Prior to this time Michigan had built a mighty reputation for itself while Syracuse had been given barely a snub by the great teams of that time.

Both teams were well matched but the New York state team uncovered a player who threw the battle's balance in their favor. It was Bill Horr, 245-pounds of fighting fury.

AS the game got under way Syracuse seemed strong enough to defend its goal from the enemy's advances. That seemed to be the main question—whether Michigan was going to score. But when the game was about one-third over, the contest took a new tack—could the Wolverines withstand the assaults of this fast running, hard-hitting tackle on the Syracuse team. That was now the question.

This broad, heavy-set athlete was being called upon by the Syracuse quarterback to take the ball about every other time, and the way he swirled out of his position at tackle, grabbed the pigskin and swung back into the line again reminded one of the havoc raised when Samson pulled down the pillars of the temple.

SINGLE-HANDED, they say, Horr won that game by his mighty march down the field and over for the touchdown. And there was never a time in the entire game when Michigan really had him stopped. He was the fastest moving, most graceful, yet most devastating machine they had ever attempted to pin down.

At any rate Bill went right up to the first All-American team that year with a rush—the first Syracusan ever to do it. Bill had been sought for more widely by colleges anxious to have him enroll with them, than any man up to this date.

BILL was a bull for strength, willingness, courage and persistency. Defensively, his position was impregnable and his speed at getting down field under punts was amazing. He was like Henry of W. & J. in that respect. For a man of prodigious and barrel-like torso he showed such startling ability to run that he was almost unstopable. The way old "Ole" went on down and through the end fence for "dear old Siwash" couldn't hold a Christmas-tree candle to what happened to the other team when Bill ran. He really was a world's wonder there—for speed, power, tearing energy and destructive action.

Pepin, the Short, came first, then Horr, then Henry—a three-of-a kind that would have beaten many a full house.

Horr is now a successful business man. That's how most of our good players turn out.

LOCAL DRUG TEAMS WIN, LOSE MATCHES

Bradley Five Defeats Locos; Chrispins Defeated by Milkmen

Two Marion drug teams split even in match games scheduled at Lima Sunday. The Bradley Drugs won over the Lima Locos while the Chrispin Drugs were taking a drubbing from the Lima Shelly Dairy five.

The Bradley rollers hit the pins for a total of 2783, taking two out of three games. In the first game the locals scored 1011. Zeisler went above the 600 mark by one pin in the match.

The Chrispin team bucked up against a tough aggregation in the milkmen. The Shelly five counted a total of 2968 to sweep all three games. Two members of the Lima team, Fetheroff and Shade, went over the 600 mark.

In the doubles matches the Marion teams had better luck, winning both of them. The scores:

NO SCRIMMAGE

New York, Nov. 26—New York university's gridiron warriors probably will not scrimmage this week in tuning up for the intersectional game with Oregon State. The players are exhausted from their gruelling battle with Carnegie Tech and will take things easy.

Golf is now a compulsory subject in the American Naval Academy at Annapolis. Midshipmen must take a course of 10 lessons and pass a test in proficiency.

PROSPECTIVE FIELD OF CHAMPIONS IS HARD HIT SATURDAY

Only Few Unimpressive Elevens of Country Remain Undefeated

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—This thing they call football will go too far with its whimsicalities one of these days and then it will have us picking the national champion by a method featured largely by the fact that you look one place and hit another. At that, I can't think of a more appropriate and seemly system to dealing with what is left of the situation after Saturday's caprices had done their worst.

Five candidates, four of them of major consequence, stripped of their credentials with a single gesture and reduced to the ranks. A few short hours and they were cast into the limbo of football's forgotten, no longer champions-in-prospect, no longer contenders.

Carnegie Tech, the team so impressive in its victory over Notre Dame, had only to beat New York university to place itself in a position where none could say it nay. But N. Y. U. won as only a better team can and Tech passes quietly from the portrait, disqualified from further consideration. Wisconsin seemingly was about to win the Big Ten title or at least get no worse than a tie. It got no worse than approximately nothing, for it lost to Minnesota, Iowa dropped an amazing decision to Michigan and Illinois came along with a victory over Ohio State to win the championship.

Ohio Wesleyan, for example, simply couldn't lose to Wittenberg after beating Michigan and Syracuse. But you can lose any game in which you score one point less than the opposition, this being one of the conclusions Mrs. Walsh's bright boy has arrived at after mature study. Wesleyan's defeat reduced the list of unbeaten teams by exactly one more.

Another to fall was Nebraska and a third Princeton. The latter wasn't supposed to lose to the Navy but it did. Nebraska finally fell before the lust of a number of strong opponents, the Army.

Thus we have left today Georgia Tech, Southern California, California, Boston college, Detroit, Tennessee, Florida and Villanova. In some cases, there is plenty of dormitory evidence to be marshalled against the contender in question.

The two California teams, for instance, have shown no ability superiority in their own section, to say nothing of advancing their claims beyond geographical lines. The California Bear got a 13 to 13 tie with Stanford on Saturday, thereby finishing its season undefeated. But it couldn't win its two major games. There will be more or there will be less to U. S. C.'s case after it plays Notre Dame in December.

Georgia Tech stands as high as any of them today and its victory over Notre Dame must keep it there until further notice. But Tech in spite of a tough southern season, has played a schedule that features sectionalism, except for the Notre Dame affair. If the Irish keep consistently against other opponents, Tech's position would be unassailable. But the Irish didn't and, therefore, Tech's position isn't.

There was a marked similarity between the performances of two of them, N. Y. U. and the Army. Both were scored upon first but came back to win as only champions can. Both won through the individual running of two men, Ken Strong and Chris Cagle. Both obviously were better teams than their opponents. Minnesota's decision over the Badgers was just as clearly earned and, although Illinois is the Big Ten champion, Minnesota must go down in the books as one of the real teams of the year.

Princeton, outgaining Navy by 13 first downs to 5, also was beaten by individual brilliance, the individual being Lloyd. A last minute pass beat Ohio Wesleyan just as the same kind of a play gave Stanford its tie with California. Illinois was better than Ohio State for every minute of the 60 but Michigan also had to come from behind, marching 63 yards to the winning touchdown over Iowa.

Harvard's 17 to 0 victory over Yale was another that needs no explaining.

MEN WHO SMOKE AND GUARD THEIR HEALTH SMOKE CIGARS

85% of the Doctors interviewed on the Staff of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore—are Cigar Smokers

La Palina is America's Largest Selling High Grade Cigar [OVER A MILLION A DAY] its outstanding popularity is the best proof of its unusual quality

THIS survey offers conclusive testimony of the smoking preferences of members of the medical fraternity.

Cigar smoking never degenerates into a mere nervous habit. To enjoy the rich flavor of the cigar to the full, slow smoking is a necessity. One is not lighted from the end of another in cringing obedience to "nerves." Nor does the average cigar smoker inhale. And inhalation is a primary cause of nerve irritation.

It is the opinion of medical authority that throat troubles so prevalent amongst smokers are due to the burning, drying effect of hot tobacco smoke upon the tender tissues of the throat. Cigars cannot be the cause of these troubles—for, to quote a prominent New York throat specialist: "Cigar smoke is cool, since the tobacco burns slowly and is cooled and filtered as it is drawn through the body of the cigar, and so quick-burning substance is used for wrapper."

Make this test for a week—smoke cigars exclusively and you will find yourself feeling better with no cough or throat irritation, improved nerves, increased vitality and less of that tired feeling. To really test cigars with justice to yourself and to cigars, we suggest the test be made with La Palinas.

Saturday Closing Fails To Tone Down Speculative Fever

INDUSTRIALS HIGHER IN EARLY OFFERINGS

Tempting Prices Fail To Bring Response from Holders

BIG JUMPS RECORDED

Sales Fall Short of Million Shares in First Half Hour

BULLETIN

New York, Nov. 26—With prices of industrial stocks moving higher and ever higher, the market moved along at a 6,000,000 share clip today. Traders rushed into the market after the Saturday shut-down grabbing stocks right and left at prices five to 15 points higher than at Fridays' close.

Tied up in one of the worst traffic jams of the year, the high-priced market sensations of the last few weeks did their stunts in regularly approved bullish fashion right at the sound of the opening gong There was no international nickel for sale as low as 219, though the stock had closed at 203 last Friday.

BY W. S. COUSINS.
I. N. S. Financial Editor

New York, Nov. 26—Like a dam suddenly released by its barriers, buying demand for industrial stocks flooded the financial district at the beginning of trading today and stock prices sky-rocketed 2-10 points. In some cases the most tempting offers brought no response from the holders of the shares.

There was no indication that the Saturday closing of the big board had toned down the current speculative fever. Everybody wanted stocks.

International Nickel closed on Friday at 203. As high as 219 was offered for the stock when the gong sounded this morning, but holders were "sitting tight." Finally a block sold at 214½, up 11½ points.

Victor Talking Machine stock advanced to 150, a week-end jump of 10 points and a gain of 102 points since its graduation from the curb a few months ago.

A dozen or more of the favorites rushed up close to five points. The list was a long one, including Consolidated Gas, Radio (up seven points); Anden Copper, General Electric; Pathe Exchange; United States Steel; Cerro de Pasco; Canadian Pacific Railway; Union Carbide; Nash Motor and Chrysler.

A long list of the copper stocks forged ahead.

Stock sales fell short of a million shares in the first half-hour against the 1,327,200 shares in this period on Friday. The tape was about 10 minutes behind at the end of the first hour.

Call money was unchanged at 6 1-2 per cent.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Nov. 26—The local wheat market was mainly a trading affair the past week. With little incentive to buy wheat, outside interest was lacking, and the bulk of the operations was changing of commitments from the December to the May delivery, with a resultant narrowing of the spread between the two months.

Relative to foreign markets prices on the local exchange ruled firm, but they finished up the week without much change, being ½@¾c lower than the previous Saturday. Foreign buying of the futures here and reports of droughty conditions in Argentine caused some upturns, but they were short lived, being met with Northwest and heavy local selling.

During the first part of the week outside interest in corn broadened out under the impetus of light receipts and bad weather for the movement, prices moved up consistantly. When profit taking stopped the bulge and selling on clearing weather and freer country offerings developed prices broke, finishing ½c below the close a week ago.

Oats maintained an independent firmness, and while prices hardened with the upturn in corn, this market held within a relatively narrow range, closing 5 8@7-8c higher. Rye followed wheat and finished 1-8c up to 3-8c off

There was some talk the early part of the week of some of the speculative fever, which has been so pronounced in the stock market and has shifted into some of the commodity markets, notably cotton, coming into the grain trade. This was cited as one of the reasons for the setbacks and the firmness of the local market in the face of weakness at Liverpool

Selling on Upturns

However, the buying power failed to follow any of the advances, and on the upturns there was considerable liquidation through commission houses. The latter part of the week outside interest was almost totally lacking. The volume of open contracts, which until Friday had remained about unchanged despite the December liquidation.

This appeared to strengthen the belief that much of the selling on the upturns was by tired longs who were picking best prices to reduce their lines

Wheat prices are virtually unchanged from August, and the trend of prices the past week has been very choppy, up and down in a narrow range. This is typical of a market lacking outside interest and any great incentive for action either way with liquidation in the nearby delivery.

SHOVEL CO. STOCK STEADY DURING WEEK

Marion Steam Shovel Co. common stock was steady in transactions on the New York curb market during the week ending Friday, Nov. 23, a review of the week's curb activities showed today. Sales of the local stock totalled 1,200 shares and the range of quotations was as follows: close, Friday, 53; high for week, 53; low, 51; The high mark for the year is 60 3-8.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Late fall and winter are the best seasons of the year to purchase vegetables and fruits, a local retailer stated this morning. During those seasons even the inexperienced buyer of vegetables and fruit may purchase freely and risk little danger of being given an inferior product.

During the warmer months of the year supplies received here by freight frequently are spoiled. The ice in the refrigerator cars becomes low, or through some other oversight of the brakemen the contents of a car may be ruined and the wholesaler here receives a shipment which it is impossible for him to offer for sale to retailers.

To avoid loss the wholesaler sells the spoiled shipment to a peddler who starts on a round of the retailers of the city offering the shipment at low prices.

Usually the retailer is top experienced to purchase the spoiled products, but eventually the peddler by offering his shipment as "good stuff cheap" sells it

The retailer who sells the spoiled shipment offers it at cut rate prices This brings down prices on good products, but the consumer loses in the end through purchasing the inferior products.

However, it is impossible for products to spoil during the colder months while in transit so that the danger of obtaining an inferior product is not present.

No price changes were reported on the retail markets of the city this morning

"Abie's Irish Rose" Ably Acted at Grand Theater by Myrtyl Ross Players

Week's Run of Ann Nichols' Masterpiece Starts Before Two Large Audiences at Opening Performances; Start Two Plays a Week Next Sunday

Back in the days of '49 the ambitions, spades and picks on their shoulders, tramped to California, to find wealth in the hills.

More than a half century later a woman named Anne Nichols hitched her typewriter and a ream of paper on her shoulders and went searching for playwright's gold.

She found it—and how! The nugget that she dug out of her brain turned out to be "Abie's Irish Rose," the most criticized play and the greatest money-maker in history.

Popular With Public

Every critic tapped "Able" as just chop-trap and everybody else ran to it, roared at its approval and made Anne Nichols fabulously rich.

And, just to give its run in this city an added zest, the Myrtyl Ross Players at the Grand are this week playing the famous "Abie's Irish Rose." Two large audiences yesterday saw the opening performances.

The Players do well by this staunch, water-proof old veteran of the war of laughs. The company is switched about to permit the various players to get the most out of the rich roles in "Able."

Miss Ross, usually found in the leading roles, has departed from the beaten path to do a comedy caricature of Mrs. Isaac Cohen, giving Alma Coble the role of Rosemary Murphy, who finds troubles enough in her attempt to marry Abraham Levy, done by Bert Merling.

Portray Parental Roles

Jack Gordon and Ernest Sharpsteen give their best to the roles of Solomn Levy and Patrick Murphy, parents of the young people, while Dick Dickinson and Frank Dean play the rabbi and priest, respectively. Billy Dale is Mrs. Cohen's husband.

One is inclined to favor Miss Coble and Mr. Merling in their work. They have the butter of the casting really, the rest of the company being forced to extend themselves in the exaggerated roles handed them in Miss Nichols comedy. Miss Ross and Mr. Dale, particularly, have difficult caricatures.

There isn't much use in going over the plot of "Abie" for everyone knows it—if the play hasn't been seen.

The company will do two plays a week commencing next Sunday, playing "Peg O' My Heart" through Wednesday and "I Love You and How" Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

CLERK ISSUES TWO BUILDING PERMITS

Two building permits were issued by the city clerk Saturday. One was for the erection of a garage and the other was for an addition to be made to a dwelling. Construction costs total $225.

Ralph Garverick, 200 Wildwood ct., will construct a frame garage at a cost of $75 at the rear of that address. Ollis E. Beris, 506 South Prospect st., will make an addition to his dwelling at a cost of $150.

SYCAMORE COUPLE WEDS AT PARSONAGE

Sycamore, Nov. 26—The marriage of Miss Grace Ekleberry and Paul K. Landis was solemnized a 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Methodist parsonage here. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ekleberry and a graduate of the Sycamore high school this year. Mr. Landis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Landis, southwest of here. They will make their home with the bride's parents.

Ritzy Rosalie

THE "Spirit of St. Louis" proved to be the inspiration for many a feminine chapeau that has since landed in a corner of the topmost shelf of the wardrobe. And, of course, the hats created in honor of the Graf Zeppelin will eventually go the way of most novelties and fade. But it's fun to be among the first to wear a chapeau inspired by a famous airship and so Rosalie feels that she will be guided safely on her way by her "Zep" hat which has a "rudder" for trimming.
